Officers Searching for Motive for Killing.

open verdict of homicide was given this afternoon at the Coroner's inquest in the case of Mrs.
Etta Sauer, 44 years old, murdered in her home at 3104 Walter avenue, Maplewood, yesterday.

St. Louis County officers and the Maplewood police, with the help of St. Louis police, will continue effort to solve the mystery.

Mrs. Sauer, wife of Louis E.
Sauer, proprietor of a downtown cigar shop, and co-worker with him in the junior department of Memorial Methodist Sunday school, was beaten to death with a piece of iron pipe while her three children were at school. No attempt robbery or indication of any other motive for the murderous insult of the home was apparent.

Sauer, 45, tall and heavyset, was a chief witness at the inquest.
He had been held at an undertaking establishment at Overland. He had been, gray-haired, and wore dark clothing. He spoke in a low, somewhat hoarse voice, and several times gave way to tears as he wife and children were mentioned.

The children, Louis, 16; Betty, 14, and Ed, 12, were the other witnesses, along with neighbors and policemen.

Testimony of Husband.
"I left home at 7:30 yesterday morning and went to the shop," he testified. "I got to the shop at 7:55, and found four men there. I stayed at the shop about an hour, then went out and made two business calls, at the Gaylord Co. and the Cruden-Martin Co."

He gave the names of persons whom he saw at the two places, and continued:
"I returned to the shop some time after 9, and stayed there until 10 p. m. I had my lunch at the shop. Then I went to the Peper Blanco Co., and returned to the shop some time before 5. The foreman told me there was a telephone message, and that I was wanted at home. He couldn't tell me why. I went to telephone to my house, but the line was busy, so I drove right there."

When asked whether anyone was known to hold enmity against him or his wife, replied in the negative. Suggestions of various persons, who, it was conjectured, might have had a business deal with him, or might have been in some way connected with him, were met with no en-agement in his brief replies.

When one name was suggested, he said, "That person sent us a Christmas present and wept. A former employee of his shoe store named Beverly said there had been no accuse between them, though he had discharged the man."

Daughter on Stand.
In the testimony of Betty Sauer, 16, who found her mother's body when she returned at 4 p. m., from St. Louis High School, it was brought out that the front and back doors of the house were locked when she arrived at the house. A later survey showed the windows were also fastened.
The rear door was fastened with nails from within. The front door, which has an old-fashioned lock, was locked and Betty opened it with a key which she had in her pocket. The key to the front door, which usually was kept inside the door, was not been found. The lock is of the kind in which the key must be inserted, and not of the kind which is inserted automatically as the door is closed.

Robbie Sauer, the youngest child, 6, testified that he found his sister Etta lying on the floor of the bedroom, where she was found dead. He was in the house several minutes, eating in the kitchen, before he found her mother's body in the bedroom. Her older brother, Louis, had stayed at high school and had not returned. He was called home by neighbor children.
Fingerprints, found on the machine paper in which the pipe was wrapped, are the chief clue which officers have found thus far. It

GUS WINKLER KEEPS PLEDGE TO RETURN BONDS

$583,000 of Lincoln Bank Loot Restored With Proof of Destruction of $2,217,- 000 Registered Securities.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—Nearly $3,- 000,000 in stolen bonds taken from the Lincoln National Bank & Trust Co. in September, 1930, were recovered or accounted for today.

Negotiable securities worth $583,000 and proof of the destruction of $2,217,000 in registered bonds were turned over to agents of the Lincoln National Bank in the offices of the "Secret Six."

Gus Winkler, gangster, made good his pledge to buy back the stolen bonds if freed of the bank robbery. He had already proved his innocence by an alibi.

R. C. Saunders, manager of the protective department of the Illinois Bankers' Association, Nebraska Bankers' Association agents, Illinois and Nebraska State police and the "secret six" had co-operated with the Nebraska peace officers for more than a year in tracing the robbers and the loot.

All but about $15,000 of the $2,- 670,000 loot was accounted for by today's recovery. Saunders said today. The bank recovered $60,000 in insurance and the little remaining may yet be restored through attachment proceedings against the holders of bonds, which have been traced.

In the offices of the "secret six," Sergeant Roy Steffens, assigned to the case since the first linking that a cache of the loot existed somewhere near Chicago, handed the negotiable securities to W. E. Barley, liquidating officer of the bank.
Saunders said proof had already been supplied by Winkler of the destruction of the registered bonds, thus permitting the issuance of new certificates without loss to the bank.

BANKS AT PORTSMOUTH, O., AND GARY, IND., CLOSE Concern at Former City With Resources of $1,145,773 to Be Liquidated.
By the Associated Press.
COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 5.—Upon request of its board of directors, the Ohio Valley Bank of Portsmouth was taken over today by the State Banking Department for liquidation. The institution had resources of $1,145,773.

GARY, Ind., Jan. 5.—The National Bank of America succumbed to a run of frightened depositors and closed yesterday. The closing Saturday of the last two banks in nearby Hammond caused uneasiness here, and, confronted with today's withdrawal, the bank closed.
Deposits had been reduced in recent weeks to $245,000.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Representative Rainey, House majority leader, said today the Democratic tax program "undoubtedly will contain some sales taxes."

This was one of the foremost direct hints yet regarding the course on taxes the Democrats will take.

The way is being cleared for rapid consideration of the whole question, while the Federal deficit continues to mount. Today it reached $1,390,583,000.

While Rainey did not specify all the sales taxes his party is considering, he said that "probably between $200,000,000 and $300,- 000,000 will have to be raised through sales taxes."

The Illinois representative made it clear that the sales taxes would not be general, suggesting that levies be made on gasoline, automobile, radio and stamp sales.

"We will have to touch many things to raise the revenue needed to balance the budget," he said.

He suggested that the maximum income tax would be 40 per cent, which is 20 per cent less than the war time maximum tax on big incomes.

The Democratic congressional Policy Committee will meet tomorrow in Speaker Garner's office to pass on a tentative tax increase program.

Rainey and Chairman Collier of the House Ways and Means Committee said that hearings probably would get under way soon on the tax proposals, with either Secretary Mellon or Under-Secretary Mills of the Treasury as the first witnesses.

Democrats plan not to lower the exemptions on small incomes, unless it is found imperative.

They are generally agreed on a larger estate tax, the levying of a gift tax and increasing the income in the higher brackets.

"If we should go too high in increasing the taxes on big incomes," Rainey said, "we might reach the point where the law of diminishing returns would react against the levy."

WOMAN LECTURER IS KILLED IN PLUNGE FROM 19TH FLOOR

Associate on Carl Schurz Foundation Says She Had Been in Ill Health and Despondent.
By the Associated Press.
PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 5.— Miss Frieda M. Burke, 37 years old, a lecturer for the Carl Schurz Foundation, fell or jumped to her death last night from the nineteenth floor of the Lewis Tower.

Wilbur Thomas, local head of the foundation, said that Miss Burke had been in ill health and had said to him a month ago that she was "tired and despondent."

The Carl Schurz Foundation was established to promote friendship between Germany and the United States. Police said Miss Burke came here yesterday from Washington and was to have left today on a lecture tour through the South.

Miss Burke had been decorated many times in this country and abroad. Last Thursday she received an autographed photograph from Wilhelm II, former Emperor of Germany. An invitation to visit him next spring accompanied the photograph. Miss Burke served on the Hoover Relief Committee during the World War and directed relief work in the Ruhr district.

HEAVY SNOW IN SOUTHWEST

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 5.— Parts of Kansas, Nebraska, Western Iowa, Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico reported snowfall today ranging upward to 18 inches in depth. In parts of Western Kansas and Oklahoma the snow fell with blinding intensity while a strong wind whipped impassable drifts across highways. Dodge City, Kan., was snowbound with five-foot drifts cutting off its main roads.
At Spearville, Kan., the Santa Fe Railroad was taxed to keep open its right-of-way. Buses were delayed. Air service was suspended.
The Texas Panhandle was all but snowbound. At Amarillo, where 12 inches of snow fell, school officials by radio advised children against leaving home. At Borger, on the high Texas plains, 10 inches of snow was reported.

ANOTHER BANKER TELLS OF PROFITS ON FOREIGN LOANS

Clarence Dillon of New York Firm Testifies to Gross Receipts of $12,- 500,000 Since War.

$1,491,000,000 OF ISSUES FLOATED

Senators Told He Expects Payment—Chase Group
'Spread' Is Put at $12,- 884,000.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The methods and morals of international banking were further illuminated today as Clarence Dillon, head of the New York firm of Dillon, Read & Co., gave his testimony in the Senate Finance Committee's investigation of foreign loans. Here are some of the high spots of the session:

Since the war, Dillon's firm has made foreign loans totaling $1,- 491,225,543, most of which were obtained by selling foreign bonds to the American public. For origination of these loans Dillon said the company received a gross profit of about $12,500,000, but it was clear that it participated in additional profits that were made during the handling of the bonds. Dillon would not attempt to calculate how much the outstanding bonds have depreciated in value.

He admitted that his firm continued to make loans in Germany after Parker Gilbert, reparations expert, publicly gave warning that Germany had overborrowed.

The company not only financed foreign industrial concerns, but it financed American companies in setting up plants in foreign countries.

Position on Foreign Loans.
Dillon expressed his position on foreign debts by declaring that the payment of debts owed by one country to another is a matter of "expediency," but that debts owed by foreign governments, institutions and individuals to private institutions and individuals must be paid or there is "no basis left for the continuation of our civilization."

He disclosed that German corporations and municipalities whose bonds were sold to American investors at around $50 each are now buying them up at from $15 to $30 from holders who are compelled to sell.

At Senator Johnson's request, the committee ordered J. P. Monaghan & Co. to furnish a statement of its profit on each foreign loan floated by it since the war. The California commented acidly on the attitude of the Morgan firm compared with that of the Chase National Bank, which voluntarily presented a complete record of its profits and those of its affiliates in foreign loans.

"If the Chase can do it, there is no reason why Morgan shouldn't," Johnson remarked.

Dillon divided foreign debts into the following three classes:

1. Those owed to institutions or individuals of one country by institutions or individuals of another country.

2. Those owed by governments or subdivisions of governments, such as municipalities, to institutions or individuals of another country.

3. Those owed by one government to another government.

Billion and Half of Loans.
Dillon disclosed that the foreign loans made by his firm since the war totaled $1,491,225,543, and that there was still outstanding a year ago the total of $1,189,000,000, and about $900,000,000 now.

Of the foreign bonds issues sold by his firm in this country, $37,- 000,000 of Bolivian bonds are in default, and interest and sinking fund payments on $55,000,000 Brazilian bonds have been suspended for three years. Dillon expressed confidence that payments on the latter would be funded successfully.

The largest loan made by Dillon, Read & Co. was to Canada, which got $499,000,000. Germany got $252,000,000; Holland got $115,- 000,000, and $209,000,000 went to South America. Other countries which borrowed from this country through the Dillon firm were France, Italy, Poland and Japan.

Profits on Bolivian Loans.
Senator Johnson elicited the fact that, on the Bolivian loans floated by Dillon's firm, it made a gross profit of $755,000 before deducting expenses.
"Do you know that the Bolivian Finance Minister was accused of accepting a $40,000 bribe in connection with one of these loans?" Johnson inquired. Dillon said he did not know.

COX'S ARMY MOVES ON WASHINGTON AS COXEY'S DID IN 1894

Led by Priest, Delegation Leaves Pittsburgh With Many on Foot.

By the Associated Press.
PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 5.—
"Cox's Army" of jobless set off for Washington today to plead for work. More than 20 blocks were jammed with crowds as the Rev.
James R. Cox, a Roman Catholic priest, marshaled his followers for the trip to the capital.

A last minute change of plans forced hundreds of men to start the trip afoot. About 600 automobiles and trucks, some of them dilapidated, were filled to capacity.
Father Cox agreed to lead the fortunate followers to surrender their seats later to those on foot.

"It's a glorious success," said the priest. "We'll get every man to Washington. Some way or other, they'll all get there."

The marchers began gathering last night in Sixteenth and Seventeenth streets, near the Allegheny River. Police and firemen were on duty, but there was no disorder.

Father Cox agreed to lead the march, he said, because he feels it is someone's duty to impress on governmental leaders in a sane way the dire straits in which these people and others find themselves.

In the march are mill hands, coal miners, railroad workers and "white-collar men" who have been unable to find any kind of work.

Every man has a blanket and a six-day food supply. Fifteen truck-loads of bread are in line. Hot coffee and soup will be served at various points by civic and fraternal organizations.

The route is across Pennsylvania and through Maryland. Father Cox will speak briefly at each stop. At Harrisburg tomorrow the column

FOUR BOYS ROB DESHLER, O., BANK IN WILD WEST STYLE

Escape With $4000, Taking Even Pennies; Offered Resistance.

DESHLER, O., Jan. 5.—Four youths held up and robbed the Deshler Bank of $4000 today, fired a shot at the cashier and escaped toward Fort Wayne, Ind.

The three oldest boys, apparently ranging in years from 16 to 20, went into the bank in Wild West fashion, firing in the air as they leaped from their roadster.

So quick were their movements that the Town Marshal and several citizens on Main street offered no resistance.

After entering the bank the boys forced the cashier, E. H. Mont-haven, and his son, H. E. Mont-haven, assistant cashier, to lie on the floor. Then they rifled the tills, taking silver, paper money and even pennies.

As they were leaving the elder Monthaven attempted to follow to the street, but a youth in the rumbly seat of the car fired at him.
The shot went wild.

Hardly had the youths reboarded the car than the driver, who appeared to be about 12 years old, sped out of town.

The car bore an Indiana license, but the number was not obtained.

TAXI DRIVERS ON STRIKE TO GET UNION BENEFITS

Yellow and Red Top Cabs Involved — Many Types of Machines Hastily Put Into Service.

EMPLOYERS' WAGE TERMS REJECTED

Wished to Fix Pay at $3 a Day, Plus 40 Per Cent Commission on Receipts in Excess of $7.50 Daily.

St. Louis had only partial taxicab service today as a result of the taxi drivers' strike. More than 400 taxicabs, members of Local Union No. 40, employed by the American Taxicab Co., operating Yellow and Red Top Cabs, Inc., in a large dispute.

The strike does not involve Black and White cabs, which are owned by individual drivers. All sorts of motor vehicles made their appearance today as "taxi." The union is issuing pink stickers to be displayed on the vehicle, to its members in the ranks of the independents, and taxi leaders anticipate that a large number of the men on strike will operate private machines as during the period of the disturbance.

The management of the American Taxicab Co., and Red Top Cabs, Inc., said they had no immediate plans for resuming operations.

William J. Brown, manager for the American Taxicab Co., said he could not afford to operate at the former wage scale, and was unable to leave the cabs in the garage for the present.

The drivers voted last Wednesday to strike on New Year's eve, the expiration of their wage contract, but with action under way, the strike was postponed until the following day.

The International Executive Committee declined to sanction the strike, which was previously indicated by the Taxicab Drivers' Joint Council of St. Louis, a group of local unions. In the absence of local sanction from the international union, no strike benefits will be paid.

Under the previous wage agreement the drivers were paid $2.50 a week and received three days off each month with pay. Employers demanded an adjustment to $3 a day, plus 40 per cent commission on receipts in excess of $7.50 daily, each cab, computed weekly, three days off. The union sought compromise at a flat rate of $4 a day, which was refused.

Union leaders said factors in the taxi strike was the refusal of employers to limit the number of cabs under the commission plan, operation of the commission on weekly instead of a daily basis, and the fact that the two concerns recently issued post-dated 90-day checks for 25 per cent of the wages due.

A strike of union taxi drivers, which began in January, 1932, lasted for months before an agreement was reached with employers. The discussion was marked by intermittent violence.

MEDICINE WITHOUT LICENSE

After Tolls Court He Has Been Giving Massage Treatment for Ailments.

Peter Parnassos, a barber, 1908
North Jefferson avenue, was fined $50 on each of two charges, one of practicing medicine without a license, the other of advertising without a license to practice medicine, by Judge Butler in the Court of Criminal Correction today.

Parnassos, who pleaded not guilty, told Judge Butler he had been giving massage treatment for various ailments for 14 years. The emphatic witness was Mrs. L.
Shirley, Mo., who said she paid Parnassos $2 for treatment of a stomach ailment last October. Judge Butler required Par-nassos to pay only one fine of $50.

TAUGHT THEM NEVER TO DRINK OR SMOKE

Harbored Them, Knowing They Were Auto Thieves
and That Harry Was Wanted for Murder.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Jan. 5.—In a dingy washroom of the Greene County jail, Mrs. J. D. Grenden Young heard today the news that her sons, Harry and Jennings, had come to the end of their criminal careers.

The gray-haired little woman cried out hoarsely as a reporter told her that Jennings and Harry had been shot and killed themselves when surrounded by police in Houston, Tex., and blinded by tear gas that cut off any possibility of shooting their way out.

"My God! My God!" she moaned.
"Why did they do it?"

She wept and a reporter supported her. Outside the cell stood the family of Sheriff Marcell Hendrix, one of six peace officers killed by the brothers Saturday night in a fight at the Young farm seven miles southwest of here. From the Sheriff's house, adjoining the jail, came faintly the murmur of voices as friends of the murdered man, solemn-faced, filed by his casket in the parlor.

Had Hoped for Suicide.
For a time the old woman in the washroom continued to sob.

"You told us yesterday you wanted your boys to end their lives rather than be caught."

"But they're my flesh and blood
—my boys," cried the mother. "I didn't want them to face a mob."

She wept again. Someone outside called for a chair. Someone else said, "Hell, she don't deserve one." A deputy sheriff stood behind the weeping woman and said:

"They didn't get what they deserved. They ought to have been hung. I'd like to do it myself. But I'm glad they're gone, anyhow."

She said no more.

"Why don't you take me home?" she moaned. "Why don't you get me out of all this sorrow and trouble? What can I do? I can't end my life and go down to eternal torment. But my boys—my own flesh and blood—went and done it. Lord, take me home."

Presently she was escorted back to her cell, still weeping. Half an hour later she lapsed into unconsciousness.

Sister Dry-Eyed.
When word that her brothers were dead reached Mrs. Lorena Conlon at the jail, she displayed no emotion.

"Don't you ever cry?" a bystander inquired.

"What's the use," responded the young woman with a shrug of the shoulders.

Mrs. Young had told ques-tioners in the Greene County jail last night that she hoped "if the boys see they're going to be caught they'll take their own lives rather than be hung or treated the way they would be."

She said it steadily, this woman who taught her 11 children never to drink or smoke and always be good members of the Baptist church; who was angered when an officer asked her if she ever used tobacco; who harbored two ex-convicts sons knowing that they were automobile thieves and that one of them was being sought for the murder of a policeman two years ago.

That one was Harry, the youngest, the "bad boy" and the best shot of the family. Mrs. Young thinks Harry was insane Saturday when he and Jennings shot it out with 10 officers and fled, leaving six of the officers dead, two wounded and the other two in flight.
Harry had a "spell" 12 or 13 years ago, she said.

Thinks Third Son Innocent.
She is equally certain that a third son, Paul, also a former convict, had no part in the fight.

Only Harry and Jennings were at home when Mrs. Young departed, several hours before the fight, with a daughter who was trying to sell a stolen car for Jennings. Two survivors of the fight, however, are positive that there were at least three and perhaps four men in the house.

Mrs. Young sat composedly on a cot in the jail corridor, in her figured blue silk dress, painted scarf and tan silk hose, as she answered questions yesterday. Her dark hair, thickly streaked with gray, was brushed straight back and fastened in a knot.

"I think the boys expected the officers to come out for them on account of those automobiles," she said. "My son, Oscar, and his wife came by the house that afternoon and didn't see anybody. They knew I was gone, so they came on into town, but I think Harry and Jennings were there all the time."

Doesn't Recall Harry's Age.
"Was Harry a good shot?" she was asked.

"Well, you know he's been away, most, ever since his daddy died 10 years ago—but I'm beginning to believe he was." There was no indication of humor in her manner.

"What kind of a fellow is he?"
"Why he's a great, big, fat, nice young man. Fair skin, blue eyes—my voice trailed away and Mrs. Young started at the wall as she visualized her son.

"How old is he?"
"Let's see. First I had two girls and then two boys and then two girls—dogged if I know how old he is."

One questioner mentioned Harry's reformatory sentence. Harry hastened to explain: "Harry got in trouble with a kid and they put Harry in a reformatory.
The kid broke into a filling station."

"Well, didn't Harry break in, too?"

"Yes, he broke in, too, and they put him away some place and then on a farm. I guess you read in the papers how good he was on the farm."

"Farmers? They were all good farmers. Do their work without being told. Oscar is the best farmer because he stayed at it the longest. He's a farmer now, with a place about five miles southwest of mine. The boys all minded their daddy—good boys."

Denies She Phoned Boys.
"But, say, I want to tell you something. They said I telephoned out to the farm when Lorena and Venita were arrested about that auto, and warn the boys to get ready because the officers were coming. Well, I didn't say such thing. It was dark before I even knew my daughters had been arrested and the shooting had happened by that time. They tell me here yesterday and said, 'Mrs.
Young, do you smoke?' I said, 'No, I don't.' I think more of my family than that, and then he said,
'Well, wouldn't you like a nice drink of whiskey about now? You know, I very nearly slapped that man. I never did anything like that. Nor my girl, either.' (The reference was to Venita, the youngest and only unmarried daughter, who has lived on the farm with her mother for the last 13 months.) 'I always taught them better.'"

Killing of the Marshal.
Someone mentioned the name of Mark Noe, marshal of Republic, Mo., the man for whose murder Harry was being sought when the officers went to the Young farmhouse Saturday. "About all Harry ever said about that," his mother remarked, "was that they couldn't prove it on him."

There was a pause and then she said, "You know why he did that?
He wasn't drunk. He told me that.
He and this other kid turned around in some driveway down in Republic and Mark Noe came running up and said, 'You're violating the law. I can't remember who the other kid was. Mark Noe got in the car with them and told them to drive to the Constable's office. Harry said he wouldn't; he told Mark Noe to get his own car and drive them down. So Noe hit Harry up here with a gun, and, of course,"

TWO BOYS ADMIT BURNING EIGHT PERSONS TO DEATH

Nailed Up Doors and Windows of Cabin Near Gallipolis, O., and Fired It Last April 7.

By the Associated Press.
GALLIPOLIS, O., Jan. 5.—Sheriff Charles Swanson announced today that two inmates of the boys' industrial school at Lancaster confessed they burned eight persons to death in a Gallia County log cabin which they set afire.

Revenge was the motive, Swanson said, adding that the boys confessed because they were conscience-stricken.

The boys are Alber Reymeyer of Gallipolis and Elsworth Mowyer of Bucyrus. The cabin was occupied by James White, 40. He and seven of his children died in the flames.

Before setting fire to the cabin, the youths said, they nailed up the doors and windows so the victims could not escape.

The Sheriff said Reymeyer and Mowyer admitted the crime to himself and to Assistant Superintendent Lamb when they visited the youths at the institution. White had moved from Gallipolis to the cabin, in an isolated district 12 miles west of here, the night before the fire. His son, George, 12, was the only one who escaped. The boy broke from the cabin, but suffered severe burns.

Swanson said Reymeyer and Mowyer were returned to Lancaster after the Gallipolis fire, and that they would be sentenced here for prosecution.

Reymeyer said he burned the family to death as a reprisal against White, with whom he had fought a short time before the fire. The father moved to the cabin. Reymeyer also held an old grudge against him, he said.

The tragedy occurred last April 7. The log house was only a few miles from the school. The boys and their parents were dead.
The remains of White and his children, who ranged in age from 7 to 21 years, were put in a small box or larger than a shoe box, and buried.

While recovering from burns, George, the only survivor, told officers his father died trying to carry twin girls to safety. He said the cabin walls collapsed and pinned White in the flames with one girl under each arm.

NEGRO KILLER GETS 20 YEARS

Lonnie Longs Pleads Guilty to Shooting Woman.

Lonnie Longs, 25-year-old Negro laborer of 4304 Fairfax avenue, was sentenced to 20 years in the penitentiary today by Circuit Judge Pearcy on a charge of second degree murder.

Longs pleaded guilty of shooting to death Hazel Langford, 23 years old, a Negro, with whom he lived.
The shooting occurred Oct. 4, 1931, following an argument.

Troubles of Other Sons.
"What did Paul and Jennings get into trouble about?" she was asked.
"Well, there was a bunch broke into a store at Ozark," she began.

"And Paul and Jennings were sent to the penitentiary."
"Yes, and served their time out and came back. Three years. But the farm."

OPEN VERDICT GIVEN IN FATAL BEATING OF MAPLEWOOD WOMAN

is the police theory that Mrs. Sauer was struck from the front and had an opportunity to see her assailant, as her forehead, and not the back of the head, was crushed. Scratches on the arms were the only body marks.

In their inquiry last evening the police were told of the departure of Sauer yesterday morning, and that the children left for school soon.

Boy Left Grocery Order.

The police inquiry last evening showed that the murder of Mrs.
Sauer must have taken place between 10 a. m. and the return of Betty to the house at 4 p. m. At 10, a grocer telephoned to Mrs.
Sauer and took her order. The order was delivered by a boy shortly after noon, at the same time that Bobby Sauer appeared at the house, and went to his neighbor's home for lunch, as he had done before when he found his mother not at home.
The older children ate at a school lunchroom.

Mrs. Sauer's body was found lying face downward, on the dining room floor. Her skull was crushed and the left jawbone broken. Examination later showed the marks of not fewer than 15 distinct blows.
She was fully clad.

Behind the piano in the adjoining living room the police found the pipe with which, evidently, the fatal blows had been inflicted. The 12-inch section of 3/4-inch iron pipe was of new appearance. One end was freshly threaded, and the marks of the vise with which the
bit of pipe had been held, for the threading process, were still bright.

Near the other end, which was bedroom of Mr. and Mrs. Sauer, was a manila paper bag, and the marks of the vise with which the
bit of pipe had been held, for the threading process, were still bright.

May Have Been at Desk.
From the position of the body, it appeared that Mrs. Sauer, when first struck, might have been sitting at a desk in the dining room, where she often sat to work on her husband's business books.

Neighbors on either side saw no strange persons go to the Sauer house, though such a visit might have escaped their notice. One neighbor noticed that the shades were drawn, which was unusual.

Mrs. Sauer had little if any money at the house, as it was the family practice to pay bills by checks.
From stains found on the kitchen sink, it appeared that, after the killing, the slayer went there and washed, using a towel taken from a kitchen cabinet. In the upstairs bedroom of Mr. and Mrs. Sauer, marks were also found, which caused the police to believe that the slayer's hands were wiped on the mattress of the still unmade bed.

The daughter, after finding her mother's body, called neighbors, and telephoned to her father's place of business, the L. E. Sauer Machine Co., 904-6 South Fourth street. Sauer was not there at the time.

RASKOB SAYS DRY ISSUE IS BOUND TO COME UP

Chairman in Washington for Democratic National Committee Meeting Saturday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Chairman Raskob said today the probhibition question was bound to come before the Democratic National Committee meeting Saturday.

"I hope," he added, smilingly,
"that it will not cause any such flare-up as it did last March. I didn't think it was going to cause a fight then."

The chairman had just arrived from New York to make preparations for the Jackson day dinner Friday night and the committee meeting on Saturday, at which the time and place for the next convention will be selected.

"This open discussion of the probhibition question," Raskob said, "is a healthy thing. I don't think I need to try to give you my views on it now."

I. C. SHOP WAGES REDUCED

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—Shopmen of the Illinois Central Railroad agreed yesterday to a wage cut of 10 per cent retroactive to Jan. 1. The 6500 men affected are members of a company union organized after the shopmen's strike of 1922 and are not affiliated with the national organization of shopmen.

He arrived at the house in his automobile at 5:15. Finding police and neighbors outside, he asked at once whether anything had happened to his younger son, Bobby.

Robert Carson, grocer at 3903 Labadie avenue, and brother-in-law of Mrs. Sauer, replied to the question. "It isn't Bobby," he told Sauer. "It's Babe; she's dead."

Mrs. Sauer was known to her relatives as Babe.

Christmas Tree Still Up.

Sauer was led into the house at the rear, and into the living room, where a decorated Christmas tree still stood.

He is principal, and Mrs. Sauer was secretary, of the junior department of Centenary Sunday School, Sixteenth and Pine streets. The two were members of Centenary Church since their marriage 18 years ago.

Mrs. Carson, sister of Mrs. Sauer, related that Mrs. Sauer often fed persons who called for help at the rear door. Another sister, Mrs.
Robert Matthews, 2866 Sullivan avenue, told of the time spent by Mrs. Sauer in working on her husband's books at home.

The Sauer machine shop employs a foreman and four machinists, and its work is the manufacture and repairing of machine parts and tools. The foreman said today that Sauer was at the place most of the day yesterday, but was out at times, as he is on most days. The foreman accompanied a police investigator to the shop at 1:15 a. m., today, for an examination of the place.

died at City Hospital today of a fractured skull, suffered Sunday, when a motor cycle on which he was riding with two other young men was struck by an automobile, at Eighth and Chestnut streets.

Allman was accompanied by Raymond Richards, 4155 Schiller place, who suffered a fractured leg, and William A. Rudolph, 4724 Terrace avenue, who was cut and bruised. The driver of the automobile was Charles Logsdon of Maryville, Ill.

St. Louisan Killed When Auto Goes

George Engel, 70, 5545 Columbia day when his automobile ran off an embankment on Highway No. 66

ternal injuries and died in a hospital at Rolla.

Riding with him were his daugh-

Junata avenue, and Mrs. Fred Dolls, 5529 Gresham avenue, all of whom suffered cuts and bruises.

The four were on their way to Texas, with Engel driving, when the car skidded on a curve.

YONNOH, GORILLA AT ZOO, HAS BRONCHIAL PNEUMONIA

Chimpanzee Companion Makes Pathetic Efforts to Entertain Sick Animal.

Yonnoh, the gorilla, whose absence from the Monkey House at the Zoo has caused much inquiry by visitors in the last eight days, is in the Zoo hospital with a severe case of bronchial pneumonia, and her chimpanzee companion, Crowley, is broken-hearted. Director Vierheller said today.

The chimpanzee was moved to the hospital along with the gorilla and does fantastic dances in a pathetic effort to amuse its listless companion. Yonnoh appeared to have improved last Sunday when the crisis was expected, said Vier-heller, but took a turn for the worse today.

SENATE GROUP APPROVES HOOVER CREDITS PROJECT

Speedy Action Expected to Follow by Full Committee on Reconstruction Measure.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—President Hoover feels confident today that the whole disposition of Congress is to devote itself to emergency legislation. As word came that leaders on Capitol Hill had given assurances of co-operation, a Senate subcommittee approved the half-billion-dollar reconstruction corporation bill. Indorsement by the full banking committee is expected.

The Senate was told this afternoon by Senator Walcott (Rep., Connecticut), that he expected to have the corporation bill before it tomorrow.

Speedy House action also seems in line. Eugene Meyer, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, told the House Banking Committee how imperative he considered the early enactment of the proposal.

No Loans to Closed Banks.
The Senate subcommittee decided not to amend the bill to permit loans to closed banks. This type of aid, it was agreed, should be undertaken in a separate bill. The subcommittee decided against permitting the debentures of the corporation to be eligible for rediscount through the Federal Reserve System. The original bill contained provision for such rediscounting.

The committee's action followed vigorous opposition from Senators Glass, Virginia, and Bulkley, Ohio, both Democrats, who had contended that, if Federal Reserve discounting of the debentures were allowed, large quantities of slow paper would find their way into the system, greatly reducing its lending power.

The bill, as revised by the committee, provides that, instead of being eligible for Federal Reserve rediscount, the debentures may be bought and sold by the Federal Treasury.

One of the controversial subjects in connection with the bill had been the proposal that the Treasury issue $2,000,000,000 bonds to finance the corporation instead of subscribing $500,000,000, and having the corporation issue debentures for $1,500,000,000 more. This change was vigorously opposed by Undersecretary Mills, and it was learned the subcommittee decided not to make it.

Provisions of Measure.
Walcott said the corporation would be authorized to issue three times the amount of its capital in the form of reconstruction bonds or other obligations and would have available $2,000,000,000 if and when needed.

The subcommittee altered the measure to provide that reconstruction bonds may be purchased and sold by the Treasury by using the proceeds of its own bonds, much may be sold to sustain the market for reconstruction bonds should such an operation be necessary.

"The reconstruction bonds themselves are not to be eligible as collateral security behind member bank notes discounted at Reserve banks, nor may such notes be used to protect issues of Federal Reserve currency," he said. "They may, however, be purchased by the Federal Reserve banks upon the same basis as other non-Government securities."

Aid to Banks and Railroads.
"The new corporation will be able to extend aid and fresh credit to financial institutions and steam railroads that need such assistance and are unable to obtain it elsewhere."

"The committee has enlarged the proposed board of directors to seven members, of whom four are to be appointed from outside the Government. Of the seven members of the board, not more than four shall be members of any one political party, thus insuring a non-partisan board."

"The committee has left for later action in a subsequent bill the question of relieving depositors in insolvent banks already closed."

Walcott said the bill as it stood was broad enough to permit loans to solvent banks that have been closed and that further legislation would be needed only to provide for relief for depositors in insolvent banks that have closed.

WALKS INTO PATH OF TRAIN Indiana Official Kills Self Because of Distress.
By the Associated Press.
LEBANON, Ind., Jan. 5.—Henry A. Kernodle, 68 years old, for many years field examiner for the State Board of Accounts and widely known as an educator and politician, committed suicide by walking into the path of a speeding Big Four passenger train here yesterday.

On the back of an envelope in his pocket was the following: "My distress is more than I can bear.
A mistake has been made. I want to be buried by Lera (his wife).
Forgive me, one and all." Mrs.
Kernodle died several years ago.
Grief and long ill health were thought to have prompted his action.

WHEAT CROSSED WITH RYE

Hybrid Grain Said to Be Adapted to Poor Soils.
By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Jan. 5.—The Cambridge University school of agriculture has announced the development of a wheat-rye hybrid which, it said, would give a good quality of grain in relatively poor soils at a low cost of production.

The hybrid was produced under supervision of Sir Rowland Biffen, whose "rust free" wheat, produced in 1914, aroused wide interest.

MRS. BESANT MUCH IMPROVED

ADYAR, Madras, India, Jan. 3.—Mrs. Annie Besant, Theosophical leader, who recently was so ill here, her life was despaired of, appeared unexpectedly today at a Theosophists' convention and spoke for two hours.

"It's quite true," she said, "that I am doing a great deal of work at present out of sight. This frail body cannot do it, but my many other bodies do." Pointing down to the earth, she continued: "I don't want just now to do much down here, because I want my other selves to do much more up there." Mrs. Besant is more than 50 years old.

LAWYER'S INSANITY PLEA FAILS

Must Stand Trial on Charge of Embezzling $200,000.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—Frank P. Danish, former attorney and Municipal Court Clerk, was pronounced sane by a jury in Judge Phillip L. Sullivan's court yesterday. He must now stand trial on charges of embezzling $200,000 given him in 1929 for investment. Danish was arrested in St. Louis and returned. He pleaded insanity and was sent to the State Hospital at Elgin. Dr. A. G. Whitman, assistant superintendent, testified Danish had never been insane.

ILLINOIS AUDITOR

FREED ON CHARGE OF MISFEASANCE

Lack of Jurisdiction Causes Directed Verdict for Oscar Nelson—Conspiracy Trial Pending.

By the Associated Press.
WOODSTOCK, Ill., Jan. 5.—Circuit Judge Edward Shurtleff ruled yesterday that he lacked jurisdiction in the misfeasance trial of State Auditor Oscar Nelson, freed on a directed verdict of acquittal. He emphasized that his action concerned only the misfeasance case and does not affect the status of the conspiracy indictment returned several months ago in Lake County against Nelson and several Chicago and Waukegan bankers. The conspiracy case is expected to come to trial late this month.

Judge Shurtleff's ruling ended a day of argument concerning the legality of the misfeasance indictment and the jurisdiction of the court in such procedure against a public official.

"It is a principle of our law that courts may not interfere with public officers," a defense attorney asserted.

In his ruling Judge Shurtleff said that action against Nelson for misfeasance should lie in impeachment by the State Senate and not in court.

Not a Jury Action.

"The action of the Senate is exclusive and final," he said. "There is no jury action to impeach and oust a public official from office. If we don't like their conduct, our remedy is at the polls or through the State Legislature."

The defense attorneys, R. K. Welsh of Rockford and David R. Joslyn Sr., dwelt at length on what they termed the demoralizing influence of the trial on bank depositors throughout the State and elsewhere and declared the case threatened to have a deleterious effect on banks over which the Auditor has jurisdiction.

Welsh appealed to bank depositors to "put your shoulders together to keep other banks from closing" and assured them the integrity of the Illinois bankers is high.

"If this indictment and this procedure is valid," he concluded, "Nelson might find himself indicted in half the counties of Illinois for closing banks and indicted in the other half for not closing them, because of the discretion the law allows him."

"Propaganda," Says State.

State's Attorney A. V. Smith "propaganda" the defense contention that the trial jeopardized other banks, and he denied that he was prosecuting the case for political or selfish reasons.

The State's case was based on allegations that Nelson knew the Waukegan State Bank to be insolvent in September, 1929, but permitted it to remain open until it crashed June 17. Smith charged that the bank depositors were led through advertising and by bank officials to believe that the bank was backed by the $200,000,000 National Bank of the Republic of Chicago.

Testimony was presented concerning a September, 1929, conference in Chicago attended by Nelson and Waukegan and Chicago bank officers, at which the Waukegan Bank was disclosed to be in precarious condition. A stock assessment was proposed, but was vetoed when Republic officials offered to donate 799 shares of Waukegan stock to be sold for the bank's benefit.

Defendants in Trial.

The misfeasance indictment was returned by the same Lake County grand jury which also named Nelson and several others in the conspiracy and other indictments. It was brought here to trial on a change of venue. Nelson's co-defendants in the conspiracy case are George Woodruff, former chairman of the board of the National Bank of the Republic; William H. Miller, former vice president of the same bank; Norman O. Geyer, president of the Waukegan bank; and John M. Connors, Waukegan vice president.

Other indictments in connection with the Waukegan failure charge individuals with specific offenses, including diversion of funds.

Nelson, after his acquittal, declared Judge Shurtleff's decision "should be of far-reaching effect in stabilizing the present turbulent conditions in Illinois."

NEW ANTI-TRUST BILLS

Three Measures by Nye to Strengthen and Clarify Law.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Three bills to strengthen and clarify the antitrust laws were introduced today by Senator Nye (Rep.), N. D.

One of the measures would make it illegal to sell goods below cost, except under exceptional circumstances. Another provision would make price discrimination an unfair method of competition.

The bills also would make trade practice conference rules enforceable after they have been adopted by the majority of the industry and approved by the Federal Trade Commission or the courts.

TRIES SIX TIMES TO END LIFE

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 5.—Jacques de la Rence, former United States navy officer and husband of Mrs. Blanche Brill de la Rence, heiress to the Brill street car fortune of Philadelphia, is in a serious condition at a hospital here, asked to be taken to the hospital. Police say he admitted six attempts at suicide in his hotel suite yesterday.

The police report says that after a quarrel with his wife, the widow de la Rence used an anesthetic and several kinds of poison in an unsuccessful attempt to end his life, then called a hotel physician and asked to be taken to the hospital. De la Rence and Mrs. Brill were married in November, 1929. He resigned from the navy in 1920.

HOOVER OPPOSES BUDGETARY METHOD OF ARMS REDUCTION

President Confers With Dawes and Norman H. Davis on Approach—ing Geneva Parley.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Preparations for America's part in the approaching Geneva arms limitation conference got under way in earnest today with Ambassador Charles G. Dawes and Norman H. Davis, two of the delegates, as early morning callers upon President Hoover.

At least one point of their instruction became a certainty. The President and State Department officials have taken a definite stand against any purely budgetary method of reducing world armament, at least insofar as the United States is concerned.

Dawes, chairman of the delegation, arrived at the White House early, where he is a guest. Davis, who will sail for Europe ahead of the rest of the American delegates, said he was opposed to agreement upon too definite a formula for America's part in the conference.

"That is what so often happens," he said. "You deal out all the cards beforehand and then suddenly something happens and the whole deal is wrong. That was a mistake made by the German high command in the war. They had too definite a plan and could not change it to meet conditions."

MIAMI, FLA., THEATER BOMBED

Several Persons Hurt But There Is No Panic.

By the Associated Press. MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 5.—Several persons were burned when a bomb which police said apparently contained acid, exploded in the Capitol Theater here last night, setting fire to a part of the stage equipment.

The bombing followed a series of difficulties between rival unions of motion picture operators. The Capitol Theater is one of the largest in Miami. The crowd fled out quietly after the explosion and there was no evidence of a panic. Several injured persons were taken to the nearby office of the physician for treatment.

FOR CO-ORDINATION OF RAIL AND BUS LINES UNDER I. C. C.

Examiner Assails Anomaly of National Transportation Part Regulated, Part Unregulated.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Steps looking to the co-ordination of highway and railroad transportation were recommended in a proposed report written by Examiner Leo J. Flynn and handed today to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The report, covering 131 mimeographed pages, plus extensive appendices, contains 50 conclusions. These include:

"The national transportation machine cannot function with progressive efficiency part regulated, part unregulated; co-ordination of transportation agencies cannot reach its economic possibilities under this anomalous condition.

"Railroads no longer have a virtual monopoly of transportation and regulatory laws based on that theory should be revised in the light of changed conditions affecting transportation and distribution since 1920.

For Regulation of Auto Lines. "Carriers subject to the interstate commerce act should be specifically authorized by law to engage in interstate commerce by motor vehicles on the public highways and such motor vehicle operations should be subject to the provisions of the interstate commerce act.

"Railways and water lines should supplement their transportation services by using motor vehicle transportation in co-ordination with their rail or water services wherever this will result in economies of operation or betterment of service or both.

"Control of motor vehicle operations by carriers now subject to the act through subsidiary or affiliated or holding companies or in any other manner should be brought under the supervision of the commission.

"To the extent that a certificate of public convenience and necessity is an antecedent to the operation of independently operated motor vehicles, carriers subject to the act should be required to obtain a certificate of public convenience and necessity before engaging in the motor vehicle operations.

Would Alter Antitrust Act. "Modification of the Clayton antitrust act to the extent that carriers now subject to that act be permitted to acquire motor vehicle lines already in operation wherever such action is in the interest of economy and efficiency of operation and not adverse to the public interest, should be provided for in any legislation for the regulation of motor vehicles engaged in interstate commerce.

"Railroads should consider whether economy and efficiency of transportation could be promoted by utilizing the railroad express agency as a medium for handling all less than carload freight with expedition in service and reduction in charges to the shipper.

"Regulation of the transportation of persons by motor vehicles for hire operating on public highways in interstate commerce should be provided for by law."

Joint Boards Proposed. Where motor vehicles operate in not more than three states, a joint board composed of representatives of the states would be set up to pass on the issuance of licenses, on rates and other matters connected with transportation, the examiner suggested.

At its discretion, the commission would refer motor transportation problems involving more than three states to similar joint boards.

The examiner proposed that the commission have authority to review any orders or recommendations of the joint boards and it would also have authority to assist in their formation, although this duty would primarily devolve upon state Governors or regulatory bodies.

AGED TOURISTS KILLED BY GAS
SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 5.—Mr. and Mrs. George T. Day, 70 and 66 years old, respectively, of Ashland, O., stopped at a tourist camp here on an automobile trip which they expected to be the crowning event of their lives. They were found dead yesterday, victims of gas seeping through a partly closed jet in their camp room.

The bodies were found when Mr. and Mrs. George C. Cook, Cleveland, O., who were traveling with the Days, went to summon the pair to breakfast. Mrs. Day's body lay near the door, where she fell unconscious after spending her last strength in an effort to drag her husband, apparently already overcome by the fumes, to safety. His body had been pulled partly off the bed.

CREDIT AGENCY ASKS BANKS FOR 10 PCT. PAYMENT

Hoover Corporation Calls on Its Members for Total of $50,000,000 on Their Subscriptions.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—The first call of the National Credit Corporation on member banks throughout the country for the payment of 10 per cent of their subscriptions to the corporation's $500,000,000 debentures was announced yesterday. The amount of the call, which is to be paid next Thursday, is estimated at $50,000,000. Part of the funds are to be used in making loans to sound banks whose collateral is not quite eligible at the Federal Reserve banks but is considered satisfactory for ordinary borrowing.

The corporation was formed last October at the instance of President Hoover. Mortimer N. Buckner, its president, is chairman of the New York Trust Co. and also president of the New York Clearing House.

Besides providing loans for banks that may be temporarily in need, the initial call of the corporation will enable it to refund loans to large banks in various localities which it has negotiated, without ordinary collateral, in recent weeks. The subscribing banks meeting the call Thursday will receive one-year gold debentures which may be extended for three years.

Identify of individual banks to which aid has been extended is not made public by the corporation, nor is the total of the amounts lent. Small banks are understood to have been the principal recipients of assistance.

The gold debenture notes delivered to member banks by the corporation in return for their subscriptions will bear interest up to 6 per cent.

The reason the corporation has not found it necessary to make an initial call upon subscribing banks until this week is said to have been one of economy, as it was not desired to issue a general request for part-payment of subscriptions until the amount of business done by the corporation warranted it.

Thus far those banks that have needed assistance have been taken care of by the corporation through loans from larger banks which have been guaranteed by the credit organization.

That the first call is only 10 per cent of original subscriptions is regarded by financiers as encouraging, indicating, they say, that the number of banks requiring aid is relatively small.

Twelve directors form the board of the corporation. George M. Reynolds of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Co. is chairman.

DANDRUFF

A Sure Way to Remove It

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely, and that is to dissolve it. This removes it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.
By morning most, if not all, of your symptoms of dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and remove every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.
You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.
You can get liquid arvon at any drug store, and four or five all you will need. This simple remedy entirely satisfies.

SICILY'S BANDIT QUEEN, HER RISE AND FALL

Man Who Conquered Mafia Tells About His Three-Year Campaign.

By the Associated Press.

PALERMO, Sicily, Jan. 5.—The hard-handed manner in which a bandit queen ruled over a large section of Sicily is described by Cesare Mori in a report he is writing on how, after a three-year campaign, he recently freed this Southern island from the grip of the Mafia, terrorist society.

Mori retired after the fight to write his story. Premier Mussolini made his a Senator in recognition of his victory.

His report will tell how the little city of Gangi, honeycombed with caves, was the headquarters of a strong section of the Mafia, headed by the notorious brigands, Candelino Melchiorre and Gaetano Ferrarello, who had been fugitives for more than 30 years.

When Mori decided to move on the city, he sent a telegram to the Mayor ordering him to call for the surrender of all fugitives within 12 hours. He vowed that if any refused he would fight them "until the last breath."

Ferrarello surrendered at once. A few days later he killed himself by leaping from a prison wall.

The others defied Mori, who gathered a force of several thousand men, sent them to vantage points around the city by truck, and began a midnight siege of Gangi.

The perfect capture of the city and criminal cases. She was the Mafia queen, Giuseppe Salvo, mother of a bandit chieftain, and her four princesses. They were living in barbaric splendor. The queen dressed in masculine garb and rode horseback as well as any man as she went from town to town collecting tribute.

She forced the pretty girls in her district to marry the desperadoes of her little army and gave them elaborate weddings. She had a crew of false witnesses who were prepared to swear to anything when they were sent, at her orders, into courts to influence the decision in civil and criminal cases. She held a form of judicial court of her own and her decisions were not subject to appeal.

The queen resisted the attack of Perfect Mori's force, along with her men. She appeared at the trial handcuffed and dressed in black with a shawl over her head.

Another of the captives was the bandit leader Melchiorre, who was imprisoned he died.

Mori tells that 1250 persons were arrested and 1000 sentenced to a total of 10,000 years behind bars for 350 murders and incalculable other crimes.

CITY UPHOLD IN RENTING BUILDINGS ON PLAZA SITE

Circuit Judge Roskopf Sustains Demurrer to Suit Filed by Owners of Hotel Property.

A demurrer filed by the city in the suit to enjoin it from renting property located on Memorial Plaza site to tenants was sustained yesterday by Circuit Judge Roskopf.

The suit was filed by Frank Yawitz and the Royal Plaza Realty Co., owners of hotel property at the northeast corner of Fifteenth and Pine streets. They alleged that several hotels on the plaza site were being rented at less than their actual rental value, competing with the interests of plaintiffs and other taxpayers. It was contended the city should remove all buildings on the site and complete the plaza project.

The city replied that as long as the plaza condemnation case is pending in court it has a legal right to obtain an income from the property by renting any of the buildings left standing. The demurrer was signed by City Counselor Muench and Oliver Senti, associate.

TRUSTEE OF $1,000,000 ESTATE OUSTED FOR FRAUD

Nephew of Cleveland Attorney Said to Have Used Funds for Personal Expenses.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 5.—The $1,000,000 estate of the late T. H. Johnson, Cleveland attorney, was removed yesterday from the trusteeship of his nephew after the latter was charged with collecting $171,000 from the estate in "commissions." The nephew, Frank D. Johnson, also was accused of spending $6200 of the estate's income for personal office expenses.

Nineteen nephews and nieces of the attorney brought the action. Probate Judge George S. Addams appointed Robert Morgan, former Common Pleas Judge, and Grover Hostford as the new trustees.

The Johnson estate also is involved by the claim of John Fink of Colorado Springs, Colo., that he is an illegitimate son of T. H. Johnson's daughter, now also dead. Fink is seeking the major part of the property but is opposed by 153 heirs.

Stores Robbed; Marshal Seized.

CAMBRIDGE, Minn., Jan. 5.—Six robbers kidnaped the Night Marshal and a citizen last night, looted four stores and fled with their stolen cash and assorted merchandise. The band threw Night Marshal Frank Whitney, 40, and Mark Dunning, a garage attendant, out of their automobile 25 miles out of town. A pharmacy, a grocery, a garage and a clothing store were ransacked. Safes in three of the places were opened.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE HEAD ANSWERED BY WOMAN WET

Mrs. Gaylord, Chairman of Reform Group Says Prohibition Has Replaced Saloon With Speakeasy.

"Prohibition has saved us from the speakeasy and the beer flat instead," asserted Mrs. C. W. Gaylord, chairman of the Missouri Branch, Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, in answer to a recent statement of E. A. Tate, president of the Anti-Saloon League in Missouri.

Tate, in an address Sunday said prohibition was not an attempt to reform citizens by law "any more than is the case in the law against murder."

"Mr. Tate's argument falls of its own weight," Mrs. Gaylord asserts. "The law against murder is a prime basic law of mankind, while prohibition is a statutory law of sumptuary character."

BLANKS ARE SENT OUTUnder New Law, Returns Are Made More Complex; Consultation Urged.Early consultation with tax experts in Room 114 at City Hall was urged today by Assessor Gehner in sending out blanks for 55,000 individual and 5000 corporation State income tax returns, made more complicated than ever by the new law, effective last Sept. 13.Last day for filing returns is March 15, and the penalty for failing to file is doubling of the tax.
The tax is not payable at the time of filing return. The returns are handed to Collector Koehn for collection between May 1 and June 1, and the penalty for delinquency is 1 per cent a month.Last year 53,795 individuals in the city filed returns on incomes totaling $82,561,949. Returns were obtained from 3009 more who had failed to file at the proper time and so paid the penalty. Corporations filed 2650 returns on income totaling $50,707,969, and in addition 400 were allowed to file at the end of their fiscal years, reporting incomes totaling $12,000,000.The new tax is on a sliding scale, as compared to last year's flat 1 per cent of taxable income. Computation is further complicated by the fact that the new law does not cover the entire year. The old rate applies to that portion of income received before the new scale went into effect Sept. 13.Exemptions remain $1000 for an unmarried person, $2000 for a married man and $2500 for each minor dependent. Under the new law, the tax is 1 per cent of taxable income of $1000 or less, 1.15 per cent for the second $1000, 1.3 per cent of the third $1000, 1.45 per cent of that portion between $3000 and $5000, 1.6 per cent between $5000 and $7000, 1.75 per cent between $7000 and $9000, and 1.9 per cent of all taxable income over $9000.SCRUBWOMAN ABANDONS RIVER TRIP AT CAIRO, ILL.Randi Lerohl Warned of Hazards of Journey; Likely to Go to New Orleans by Steamboat.CAIRO, Ill., Jan. 5.—Having traveled more than half of the 2100 miles down the Mississippi River in her flat-bottomed rowboat, Randi Lerohl, the 48-year-old Superior (Wis.) scrubwoman, abandoned her voyage here today. The remainder of the trip would be much more hazardous, advisers here said in persuading her. She will go on to New Orleans on the steamer Indiana Wednesday.A wind and rainstorm forced Miss Lerohl to remain in port today after she landed late yesterday and was the guest of the Rotary Club at a dinner and spentthe night at a hotel. She had planned to resume her journey this morning.Miss Lerohl, after being convinced the rest of the trip down the Mississippi to the Gulf of Mexico would be much more difficult than the part she had successfully traveled, admitted she was tired of the hardships of the voyage.

At the dinner last night, Miss Lerohl was called upon for a speech."Everyone is kind," she muttered, and would have fled from the room if she had not been restrained.

Been Dismissed and Two Accused Soldiers Are De-

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Japan formally apologized to the United States today for the attack on American Consul Culver B. Chamberlain by three Japanese at Mukden, Manchuria.

Acting on instructions of his government, Ambassador Debut Japan expressed to Secretary Simson at the State Department the Japanese Government's regret over the "unfortunate incident at Mukden."

The Ambassador's only statement to my Government, I have come to the State Department to express a sincere regret of Japan over a recent unfortunate incident at Mukden."

The American Government withheld formal acceptance of Japan's apology. Simson expressed gratitude to the Ambassador for having acted so promptly, but said further reports of the incident were received he would again deal with him.

S. and Japan Agree Reparation Should Be Made.

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Jan. 5.—
The question of reparation by the Japanese military for the attack on United States Consul Culver B.
Chamberlain yesterday has become a bone of contention between the United States and Japan.

The Japanese military's investigation continued today. The two soldiers involved were confined to barracks, but not imprisoned. A civilian interpreter has been dismissed. The spokesman for Japanese headquarters confirmed the termination of his superiors to investigate the matter thoroughly and said, "If the Japanese are found to be culpable proper steps will be taken."

American Consul-General Mc-Myers received apologies yesterday from the Acting Consul here who declined to treat the assassination as an incident of being attacked by local American and Japanese authorities and sent all information to the State Department at Washington.

American and European residents have expressed a resentment among the Japanese forces in Manchuria and Japanese civilians rioters especially against the United States and Great Britain.

Japanese patrols frequently ha-rassers in automobiles, they said and questioned them at the point of entry.

were patrolling a road on the border of the Japanese railway town of Mukden. They ordered the Chamberlain's automobile to stop. It was flying an American flag, but Chinese, they said, had been misusing the flag and they were unable to take it at its face.

They asked Chamberlain to show papers and he offered his passenger passport, "arguingly," they said. The civilian interpreter had difficulty recognizing the passport. When they were satisfied with Chamberlain's identity they told him to pass on.

Chamberlain, in his written report of the attack, said: "I am at a loss to account for this entirely unprovoked, brutal attack. Had I resisted, I believe probably would have been shot." He emphasized that my identity had been realized when the attack was made.

Stimson Awaits Further Reports on Beating of American Consul at Mukden, Manchuria.

MIKADO'S ARMY PLEDGES INQUIRY

Civilian Interpreter Has Been Dismissed and Two Accused Soldiers Are Detained in Barracks.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Japan formally apologized to the United States today for the attack on American Consul Culver B. Chamberlain by three Japanese at Mukden, Manchuria.

Acting on instructions from his government, Ambassador DeBach of Japan expressed to Secretary Stimson at the State Department the Japanese Government's "sincere regret" over the "unfortunate incident at Mukden."

The Ambassador's only statement was: "On telegraphic communication, I have come to the State Department to express the sincere regret of Japan over the recent unfortunate incident at Mukden."

The American Government withheld formal acceptance of Japan's apology. Stimson expressed gratification to the Ambassador for having acted so promptly, but said when further reports of the incident were received he would again act with him.

U. S. and Japan Agree Reparation Should Be Made.

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Jan. 5.—The question of reparation by the Japanese military for the attack on United States Consul Culver B. Chamberlain yesterday has become one between the governments at Washington and Tokyo.

The Japanese military's investigation continued today. The two soldiers involved were confined to barracks, but not in prison. The civilian interpreter has been dismissed. The spokesman for Japanese headquarters confirmed the determination of his superiors to investigate the matter thoroughly. He said, "If the Japanese are found to be culpable proper steps will be taken."

American Consul-General Myrl Myers received apologies yesterday from the Acting Consul here, but he declined to treat the assault as an incident capable of being settled by local American and Japanese authorities and sent all the information to the State Department at Washington.

American and European residents at Mukden said recent developments have engendered a resentment among the Japanese forces in Manchuria and Japanese civilian officials especially against the United States and Great Britain. Japanese patrols frequently halt foreigners in automobiles, they said, and question them at the point of departure.

The Assaults' Story.

The civilian interpreter and two Japanese who stopped Chamberlain told the following story, according to Lieutenant-Colonel Matsui of Gen. Honjo's staff:

At about 6:30 a. m. the three were patrolling a road on the border of the Japanese railway town when Chamberlain's automobile approached. They ordered the car to halt. It was flying an American flag but Chinese, they said, had been mistaking the flag and they were unable to take it at its face.

They asked Chamberlain to show his papers and he offered them. They asked him to get out of the car. The civilian interpreter had some difficulty recognizing the passport. When they were satisfied with Chamberlain's identity they told him to pass on.

Chamberlain, in his written report of the attack, said:

"I am at a loss to account for the entirely unprovoked, brutal attack. Had I resisted, I believe I probably would have been shot. It was emphasized that my identity must have been realized when the attack was made."

When his automobile was stopped, the two men in uniform were standing by with rifles. In a threatening attitude the civilian questioned him persistently for five minutes, he said, while the rifles continued to be pointed by the other two.

"Some civilian sneered," he said, "asked by what authority he was further detained and the civilian sneered at him when he asked him to get out of the car. I then asked him for his card," he said, "which seemed to license each of them, for they began addressing me in an extremely complimentary language, presumably Japanese."

He civilian then, without provocation, aimed a blow at my head, which I partly dodged. One uni-

CULVER BRYANT CHAMBERLAIN.

SUPREME ECONOMIC COUNCIL REORGANIZED IN RUSSIA

Divided into Three Departments in Move to Emphasize Light Industry.

MOSCOW, Jan. 5.—The Central Executive Committee of the Communist party has decided to reorganize the Supreme Economic Council, most important economic branch of the Soviet Government, by splitting it into three independent commissariats.

The Council, which has been the control body of public economy in the Soviet Republic from the building up of new industries to production and distribution, will be divided into departments for heavy industry, light industry and the lumber industry.

The party's action was not only in line with its policy of decentralizing units which have grown too heavy under the impetus of the five-year plan, but was interpreted as a reflection of the present trend of the state to devote more attention to light industry, which produces goods for home consumption.

OFFERS BILL TO CONSOLIDATE WAR, NAVY DEPARTMENTS

Congressman Byrnes Favors Secretary of National Defense as Economy Move.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Chairman Byrnes of the House Appropriations Committee today introduced a bill to consolidate the Army and Navy into a Department of National Defense.

The Tennessee Democrat proposed that one Cabinet officer supplant the two who now represent the War and Navy Departments. There would be assistants for the army, navy and aviation.

Byrnes called attention to budget estimates for 1932 allowing $342,000,000 to the navy and $301,000,000 to the army, and said: "There is no doubt that such a consolidation will result in economies."

COUNTRY SHOULD 'TAKE IT ON THE NOSE,' SAYS STRAWN

U. S. Chamber of Commerce Head for Higher Taxes and Care Not to Repeat Errors.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Silas Strawn, president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, after a conference with President Hoover yesterday, said immediate creation of the $500,000,000 Reconstruction Corporation would allow what he termed "hysteria" and start the wheels of business moving properly.

He said he believed the country should "take it on the nose" for past financial mistakes, agree to higher taxes and curtail Government expenditures, and take care not to repeat past failures.

Turco-Italian Pact Signed.

ISTANBUL, Jan. 5.—A Turco-Italian treaty, amicably ending the conflict over the islands between Castellorizo and the Anatolian coast, was signed at Ankara yesterday, according to an official communique issued today.

formed man came closer in a menacing manner," Chamberlain said he then re-entered the automobile. "The civilian, entering the car, rained blows, continuing his tirade," he said. He was covered by the rifles and gave up any notion of resisting, only protecting himself with his arms, he declared.

The civilian repeated the attack at least three times and then "one of the uniformed men, through the open door on the other side of the automobile, pounded me with the muzzle of his rifle and struck me several times in the face. The soldier withdrew while the civilian struck one or two parting blows. Then, with their rifles still leveled, I was told I could proceed."

GANDHI APPEALS TO CHRISTIANS TO JOIN IN STRUGGLE

Indian Nationalists Boycott British and Foreign Goods—Government Outlaws 45 Organizations.

By the Associated Press.

BOMBAY, Jan. 5.—Mahatma Gandhi, in jail at Yeroda, appealed today for support of Christians for his fight against the British Government. Meantime Indian Nationalists laid a strict boycott on British and foreign goods and the British Government of India retaliated with more arrests. Forty-five organizations affiliated with the Nationalist Congress in Calcutta were declared unlawful.

The Government has extended to Bombay and throughout the Madras presidency the emergency ordinance declaring the Congress party illegal and forbidding contributions to its funds. Application of the ordinance in Bombay is particularly directed at wealthy mill owners and merchants who have helped the Congress with money.

Gandhi in his appeal said: "I have full trust that in the present struggle you who tender your loyalty to one whom you call the Prince of Peace will not be behind any other community in a struggle which is essentially based on peace."

He urged Christians to adopt the spinning wheel and homespun garments—marks of the Nationalist movement—and to renounce drink.

Farwell to Lord Irwin.

In a farewell telegram to former Viceroy Lord Irwin, with whom he concluded the Delhi truce last year, bringing temporary peace, Gandhi said: "I pray believe I tried my best, but failed. Nevertheless, I do not lose hope, and, God willing, I shall retain the same spirit you believe actuated me during that sacred week in Delhi. I shall not be your certificate."

Madeline Slade, the Mahatma's disciple, went with Mrs. Gandhi and Davidas Gandhi to the Mahatma's shrine of brotherhood and love at Ahmadabad today to pray for his release and India's emancipation. They expected to be arrested soon afterward for having joined the army of civil resistance.

Harilal M. Gandhi, eldest of the Mahatma's sons and long a bitter opponent of his father's principles and mode of life, returned to the fold today. The father's attitude when he was arrested and imprisoned finally won over the son. Harilal has donned the white cap of the Nationalists and joined the "nonviolence" crusade. He has remained Gandhi's favorite son in spite of the fact that he frequently denounced his father.

Police Raid at Patna.

Police took possession of the headquarters of the Congress Committee at Patna, after arresting Rajendra Prasad, president of the National Congress, and six leaders of the Provincial Congress. Prasad had just been appointed to succeed Vallabhai Patel as president of the national body, when Patel was taken to jail with Gandhi yesterday.

Dr. M. A. Ansari was appointed to succeed Prasad—the third man to hold the office in two days.

The Nationalist cause received some reinforcement by the offer of support from a part of the powerful All-India Moslem Congress at New Delhi. The Moslem Congress split, the president and secretary resigned, and a resolution was passed declaring that "frontier ordinances and arrests are having no other effect than to banish the idea of the general mass of the Moslem people co-operating with the Government."

Heretofore the Government has had the support of a vast majority of the Moslems. The disaffected members may now go over to Gandhi.

Some members of the business community showed a disposition to deprecate the Viceroy's rejection of Gandhi's appeal for an interview last week. E. C. Benthall, president of the foremost European firm in India, sent a long message to Prime Minister MacDonald, in which he said a grave situation was arising out of the Viceroy's refusal to see Gandhi and inquiring if the Government was prepared to protect the Indian community from the inevitable consequences of the civil disobedience movement.

The Indian merchants' chamber adopted a resolution deploring the Viceroy's attitude and requesting the Government release Gandhi.

ANTI-RED LAW IN CHILE

Government Opens New Offensive Against Communists.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 5.—Chile prepared today for a new drive against Communists and agitators with the signing by President Montero of a law passed by the Legislature yesterday. The law provides heavy penalties for attempts to influence the Army or Navy to subvertive acts of any kind.

Raid on Communist headquarters throughout the country have been in progress since Christmas.

CHURCHES UNITE IN PLEA FOR JOBS FOR UNEMPLOYED

Protestants, Catholics and Jews Urge More Equitable Distribution of Wealth.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Community relief measures and Federal appropriations to supplement them were described as "palliative, not a solution," for unemployment by the three great church groups in America yesterday. They recommended that national and local governments translate funds into jobs by extending public works programs throughout the country.

In a joint statement, Protestant, Catholic and Jewish churchmen expressed the view that "employment is the only cure for unemployment." They specifically urged immediate acceleration of road construction, development of parks, elimination of grade crossings, flood control projects, reforestation and the clearing of city slum areas. Employment thus given, they said, would increase "purchasing power to stimulate all business."

They urged against indiscriminate wage cuts at this time, affirming a belief in "the necessity of a more equitable distribution of wealth and income." Unemployment insurance, with the stipulation that it be not confused with the dole, was endorsed.

The statement was signed by the commission on the church and social service of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, the social action department of the National Catholic Welfare Conference and the Social Justice Commission of the Central Conference of American Rabbis.

MARTIAL LAW IN HONDURAS AFTER REVOLUTIONARY MOVES

Trouble Follows Firing of Banana Workers and Reductions in Wages.

By the Associated Press.

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Jan. 5.—Martial law was declared throughout Honduras yesterday in consequence of a revolutionary movement in the banana-growing zone and a strike was declared at Tela.

Groups of rebels and Federal troops fought in various parts of the country. There were a few casualties when one band attacked the Choloma Cortes zone and another marched on Santa Cruz Yojoa, while the Federals turned back a large band of insurgents, to whom they had threatened San Pedro.

The United Fruit Co. has discharged 800 men in the banana belt and reduced salaries at Tela, where wharf workers and railroad men went on strike. Authorities offered to make up the difference in wages, but the strikers refused to return to work. The situation at Tela was regarded as threatening, because the strikers numbered nearly 1000 men and that town is a leading center in the banana industry.

14 GERMAN MINERS ENTOMBED

By the Associated Press.

BEUTHEN, Germany, Jan. 5.—Rescue workers who pushed their way into the Karsten-Zentrum mine here today, seeking 14 miners who were entombed by a cave-in yesterday, said they entertained little hope of finding the men alive.

They encountered other cave-ins early this morning, making progress precarious.

FINLAND CALLS SPECIAL SESSION ON DRY REPEAL

Parliament to Meet Jan. 19—Plan for Sale of Liquor by Government Agencies Proposed.

By the Associated Press.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Jan. 5.—President Pehr Evind Svinhufvud has called a special session of Parliament to meet Jan. 19 to act on the results of Finland's prohibition referendum in which an overwhelming sentiment for repeal of the dry laws was indicated.

The special session was called at the request of the Cabinet, which said it feared the prohibitionists might attempt to obstruct legislation in the regular session beginning Feb. 2.

A vote on the question of repealing the prohibition law might be delayed for many weeks in the regular session and the question might even be tabled by a one-third vote until Parliament was dissolved or a later session assembled.

Minister of Justice E. M. Kivimäki, who has the duty of drafting a new law for the Cabinet and piloting it through Parliament, said the Government had decided "that the nation's best course in the liquor issue would be one of strict regulation and taxation."

It was learned that the plan called for the organization of a Government-controlled corporation which alone would have the right to import and trade in alcoholic beverages.

The Cabinet especially feared the prohibitionists would try to dicker over the use to be made of revenue from the sale of alcoholic products, it was understood, and would hold up all legislation until that phase was settled. In a special session, the Government would be in a position to force a vote on each phase of its proposal and the members would not end the session without voting on the measures before them.

The final count in the referendum was announced today. It shows 70.45 per cent of the votes for repeal, 25.14 per cent for retaining the law and 1.41 per cent for a modified program of wine and beer. Of the 346,715 women who voted 66 per cent opposed prohibition.

Mexican Wireless Contract.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 5.—The Government, through the Communications Department, announced that a contract had been signed with William Henry Bareby on behalf of the R. C. A. Communications, Inc., for establishment of a public commercial wireless service between Mexico and the United States, Canada and various European countries. The contract runs 10 years. The Chapultepec Government radio station or other stations here will be used for transmission and receiving.

GOV. LA FOLLETTE SERVES ULTIMATUM ON LEGISLATURE

Will Veto Any Relief Bill Not Financed by Surtaxes on Cash Incomes.

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 5.—Defending his plea for the use of the State's taxing power to redistribute wealth, Gov. Philip F. La Follette told the Wisconsin Legislature in a special message today that he would veto any unemployment relief bill not financed by surtaxes on net cash incomes, which he estimated totaled $250,000,000 in Wisconsin.

This was the Governor's answer to the Senate, which last week killed his $17,000,000 relief program and passed in its place a $5,000,000 measure introduced by Senator Philip Nelson.

"No member of this Legislature and no responsible person outside it has yet attempted to dispute the fact that the cause of this depression is the lack of purchasing power," Gov. La Follette said.

"Nor has anyone denied, that this being the case, the only immediate effective remedy is the use of the taxing power to restore in some measure the consumption of our production of the farm and factory."

"The grave emergency which faces Wisconsin and every other state in the Union requires the expenditure of money. Behind all the long speeches, and motivating all the legislative maneuvers of the past six weeks, there has been just one simple but very important question: who is to pay the bill? Is the necessary money to be raised from those with substantial net incomes, or shall it be imposed upon farmers, home owners and small business men?"

"Those who proposed to load this burden upon farmers, homes and places of business do not say so frankly. They cloak their defense of one form of wealth under every sort of specious argument."

"But behind every move they have made there is one objective: to protect one form of wealth from paying its share of the costs of this emergency."

The full commission met today to hear arguments for and against the granting of a preliminary permit to develop the power resources of the Current River one of the best fishing streams in the state. The Doniphan Hydro-Electric Co., of Doniphan, and the Current River Power Co. of Kansas City have filed conflicting applications for preliminary permits to survey the river's power possibilities. Chairman Smith said the commission had received many letters from Missourians, including Senator Harry B. Hawes and Representative John J. Cochran, opposing the granting of a permit.

R. W. Street, president of the Current River Co., told the commission that instead of destroying the beauty of the Current River region, a series of three reservoirs would add to the scenic resources of the region. He also claimed that fishing would be better in the reservoirs than in the river.

John A. Shafer, president of the Doniphan Co., was not at the meeting and his brief was read to the commission. Congressmen Williams, Barton and Fairbairn, who represent districts in this region, urged the granting of a permit as a step toward developing Southeast Missouri.

Powell, as a representative of Gov. Caulfield, said: "The State of Missouri strenuously opposes the construction of any dam that might cause the water in the Current River to overflow any part of the Big Springs State Park, or that might in any way interfere with the present flow of Big Springs."

U. S. BOARD HEARS CURRENT RIVER POWER PROPOSALS

Gov. Caulfield's Agent Protests Against Destruction of Scenic Beauty of Region.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—C. A. Powell, an Assistant Attorney General of Missouri, urged the Federal Power Commission today to protect the scenic beauty of the Current River region in any permit or license that might be granted to a hydro-electric power group to erect dams and storage basins on the river above Doniphan.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Why It Should Be Named "St. Louis."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I AM writing as to your advocacy of christening the new Navy dirigible "St. Louis." The editorial you ran made mention of the relation of dirigible operation and free ballooning, but I doubt if this is in any way grasped by the people at Washington. The fact is, there is an impressive record of free ballooning held by St. Louis.

Back in 1889, John Wise Wood—remembered particularly in ballooning as the inventor of the drag rope—made a flight from what is now Camp Jackson Park at Grand and Pine, landing on the seashore at Atlantic City. The flight established a record for distance which held, I believe, until Harvey and Post's memorable flight to Lake Tobatagama, Quebec. The city's inland central location made this distance possible. As balloon racing merely consists of floating off on the wind as long as it is possible to keep the balloon aloft, it is important to have plenty of distance. That's what the city offered. For instance, in one race, Albert Bond Lambert landed in Georgia and Tony von Phil in Minnesota, the two balloons having started only five minutes apart.

When the first Gordon Bennett race, which was held in Paris, was won by an American, who thereby brought it to this country, St. Louis got the contest. This advertised effectively its geographical advantage for ballooning and developed locally a group of balloon pilots who now rank as veterans. No city can approach us in the number of contests we have held. They include three international, the last one being held in the fall of 1929, a number of nationals, which are in the nature of elimination contests to qualify Americans for the international contest, and the Army-Navy race in 1918. (Some 35,000,000 cubic feet of St. Louis gas have been used for balloon inflation.) Albert Bond Lambert supplied the latter race with the gas.

The training of army pilots during the war is another very important part of our ballooning record in St. Louis. Some 350, as I recall, were qualified, and of these a very generous percentage were St. Louisans. Albert Bond Lambert was the man who got the school started down at Grand and Meramec and who was responsible, too, for the Missouri Aeronautical Reserve, which backed it. At this time, St. Louis leadership in ballooning was confirmed, for the experienced aeronauts that the city had produced were called into service as instructors and technicians. Paul McCullough, now an engineer with the Scullin Steel Co., Cole, Donaldson, McKibben, were pilots. Harry E. Honeywell, now the manufacturer of balloons to supply the Government's urgent need for bags with which to train the student pilots. The balloon school was an important St. Louis contribution to the war and ought not to be forgotten now in the naming of the new dirigible.

The question might be asked, "What has all this balloon business to do with the dirigible?" And here is the pith of my message, what should be the meat of the coconut in our claims for recognition in the naming of the new ship, the point, I think, which was not fully made clear in the Post-Dispatch editorial and which should be stressed to the Secretary of the Navy's office. No man can touch the wheel of our country who has not first been trained as a free balloon pilot. For the dirigibles are in effect vast motorized balloons. A practical mastery of free ballooning is fundamental to understanding the theory of dirigible flight and according to the experts.

The personnel of balloon race contestants today tells the story. They are almost all Army and Navy men—student dirigible pilots. Count Zeppelin himself caught the inception of his idea as a free balloon observer in the American Civil War. When the Shenandoah broke in two a mile high in a tornado, the crews of the crew who were inside the envelope turned the floating sections into free balloons and safely piloted them down to earth. No dirigible navigator is going to have to do that again with his Akron-made ships, but he does have to be a good free balloonist all the time.

So, by all means, let's call the new dirigible "St. Louis."

A Diabolical Plot.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WHILE pursuing the even tenor of my humble way, I noticed two suspicious-looking bewhiskered gentry conversing earnestly with each other. I was horrified when I heard them discussing a diabolical plot utterly to destroy this Government.

It seems the Bolsheviks have started to dig a hole through the earth from Siberia to the United States. A famous foreign scientist is not in this country to look at the stars, but to calculate how much they must excavate each day so that the vast horde can break through the earth to the United States. ## A SPECIAL SESSION, GOVERNOR!

The Missouri Supreme Court has sustained Gov. Caulfield's veto of the congressional redistricting bill passed by the last session of the Legislature. The decision means that our 13 Congressmen will be elected at large next November, unless, in the meantime, the Legislature, in a special session called by the Governor, passes a redistricting measure which meets with the executive's approval, or an appeal is taken to the United States Supreme Court and the ruling reversed.

Gov. Caulfield, if correctly reported, will not convene an extra session unless assured in advance of satisfactory action. The question was brought to the State Supreme Court by John H. Carroll of St. Louis when his declaration as a candidate in the Tenth District, as designated by the vetoed bill, was rejected by the Secretary of State. It is not known whether Mr. Carroll plans to carry the case to the highest tribunal.

It was contended in the Carroll suit that the redistricting measure was a ministerial, rather than a legislative, act, and as such did not require the Governor's signature. The court overruled that point.

The opinion, written by Judge White, redites: that the Legislature fashions all the ways and means of holding elections by acts in which the Governor constitutionally participates; that a redistricting measure is a legislative act, precisely as a bill fixing the qualification of Judges or any other detail of election machinery is a legislative act. "The word 'legislature' cannot mean one thing for one of such duties and another for the next."

In a number of states, Governors and legislatures have been rowing over congressional redistricting on the basis of the 1930 census. The Minnesota Supreme Court held that the redistricting power was vested in the Legislature, that the Governor's approval was unnecessary and his veto void. The Missouri court takes cognizance of that case, venturing that "if the United States Supreme Court should affirm the judgment in the Minnesota case, it is because of the Minnesota court's interpretation of its own constitution."

It seems to us that our State court's opinion is eminently sound, should be accepted as final, and that Gov. Caulfield and the leaders of both parties in the Legislature should get together, waive partisan advantage and agree upon a plan which will save the State from the confusion, cost and humiliation of conducting a congressional election at large. We repeat what we have previously said, that failure to meet this comparatively simple obligation would convict us of political incapacity. Such failure would be miserably unfair to the people of Missouri, unfair to candidates, would destroy our representation in Congress as constitutionally conceived, would be a black mark on Gov. Caulfield's excellent administrative record, and would institute a revival of political bossism that can be contemplated only with dismay.

RENOMINATIONS BY DEFAULT.

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, former Representative-at-large from Illinois, has caused her newspaper, the Rockford Register-Republic, to print an editorial protesting the practice by political parties of allowing presidential nominations to go to incumbents by default, so to speak. Whatever objections there were to Mrs. McCormick's political philosophy as evidenced by her campaign for the Senate—and they were many—she is on solid ground when she makes this plea. No President should be renominated simply because he happens to hold the office. Lincoln and Wilson, obviously, merited renomination and re-election. Grant did not, and neither did Taft, as the voters of the country declared in no uncertain terms. There should be only one test for a presidential candidate, and that is whether he is the best man the party can offer the country.

THE CURRENT RIVER HEARING.

Upon the outcome of a hearing which begins at Washington today before the Federal Power Commission in the matter of proposed power projects for the Current River will depend to a very great degree the fate of this beautiful Missouri stream.

Fortunately, applications for a series of permits to build dams upon the Current River have aroused the State and the people to a realization of a grave menace to one of Missouri's finest recreational assets. Gov. Caulfield and Attorney-General Shariel are both represented at the hearing today, and Missouri is also enjoying in the hearing the good offices of Senator Hawes and Congressman Cochran. They both believe that to bury many of the great springs upon the Current River and to replace its sparkling flow with a chain of lakes would be to reduce to an unnecessary commercial use what would much better continue in a state of nature.

The Post-Dispatch has held this view from the time the Current River dams were first suggested. It has pointed out that any power which may be generated there would better be produced with coal from Illinois, which is usually nearer the market for electricity than any of the Ozark rivers. The Cahokia plant of the Union Electric Light & Power Co. illustrates this point. It furnishes more than twice as much power as the great dam in the Mississippi River at Keokuk, and three times as much as the Osage Dam, and does it cheaper.

The Federal Power Commission has taken cognizance of the opposition to the Current River projects. In its call for the hearing which begins today, it has announced its intention to consider not merely the economic and industrial interests involved, but the social and recreational objections to so changing the river. The State ought to have, and could have, much more jurisdiction over such matters. Unhappily, the Legislature has not yet seen fit to make this possible. As the situation stands, applications for permits are made before the Federal Power Commission. It is the policy of the commission not to grant such permits over the objection of a state, if the state sets up machinery through which to make such objection. Missouri's sole function, under the circumstances, is to issue, through the Public Service Commission, certificates of necessity and convenience for power plants. It has nothing to say about dams, though it could have a great deal to say.

If the Current River is saved from despoliation, the State should move with all possible speed to provide safeguards against such a danger arising again. We have often pointed out how these can be provided. The Legislature can adopt an act which places within its own hands acquiescence in all such power permits. It is necessary to go to Congress to get a permit to build a bridge over a navigable stream in Missouri. Congress has never delegated that power to any subsidiary body, nor should the Legislature of Missouri delegate to any subsidiary body power to acquiesce, so long as it is the policy of the Government to respect such objections, in power dams on the Ozark rivers. We must realize that once those dams go in, they will hardly come out.

ANALYZING MOTOR FATALITIES.

In its analysis of 1931 automobile fatalities in St. Louis, the Safety Council finds that carelessness of both pedestrians and motorists was an important factor. Ten of the 170 deaths, a total 14 greater than in 1930, were caused when persons walked into the sides of motor cars, and 51 deaths occurred in the middle of the block or away from intersections. The city undertakes to control motorists, and is partly successful, but it cannot control the movements of pedestrians. If the latter are to be saved from injury and worse, they must be alive to the fact that crossing the street has become a hazardous adventure.

Perhaps the most inexcusable type of automobile fatality is the killing of persons standing in safety zones, of which there were three in 1931. If markers and painted lines are not sufficient to warn motorists from these zones, perhaps we shall have to resort to raised platforms, concrete pillars and other means of protection. On some streets, notably widened Olive, where traffic is heavy and swift, painted zones are far from reassuring to those who must board street cars. We do not doubt in the city of the future vehicles of mass transportation, whether bus or trolley, will be loaded at the curb.

Two persons were killed by being brushed from the running board of moving trucks, and seven lost their lives by falling out of motor vehicles, both these items being chargeable to carelessness. Several deaths from collisions, both with fixed objects and other cars, have a similar origin. Carelessness, however, is only part of the story. It is inevitable, for one thing, that while the streets of the city are filled night and day with fast-moving vehicles, a certain number of persons are going to be killed. Again, wise legislation and vigilant enforcement will aid greatly in cutting down the toll.

Many deaths attributed to carelessness, upon closer scrutiny, are caused by persons unfit to drive motor cars. We do not permit citizens to go about the streets firing off pistols and shotguns, yet we permit anyone who has the price of a license fee to drive a similarly deadly weapon. A driver's license bill was offered in the last Legislature, but, unfortunately, failed of passage. The need for one becomes increasingly apparent. In other states, where such legislation is in force, the improvement in traffic accidents is notable, despite the fact that nearly everywhere license laws are liberally applied and succeed in eliminating only the palpably unfit.

NOTE ON CHILD CARE.

A British lecturer avers that, at the age of 4, a child's character is fixed and nothing that happens afterward will change it fundamentally. If this is so, it adds a new and crushing responsibility to parenthood, which must compress into the first four crowded years the training that has usually been administered in small doses through adolescence to maturity. What with new theories about child-rearing and other physical care, and Dr. Freud's still astonishing researches into the subconscious of infants, the job of being a parent is already sufficiently arduous. If a child were reared properly according to the dictates of the modern school, he would need, not two parents, but 10 or 12, together with some device to keep him out of the jampan while being schooled, psycho-analyzed and regimented.

THE GOTHENBURG SYSTEM.

The Finnish Government, now that the people have given an overwhelming mandate for repeal of the prohibition law, has the task of legalizing liquor without bringing in the evils attendant on its unrestricted sale. The Minister of Justice expresses preference for the Gothenburg plan, one of the pioneer and long-tried systems for achieving temperance without attempting to shut off liquor entirely. Its history goes back to 1855, when Sweden gave her cities the right to license and control the selling of liquor. Gothenburg made an innovation in 1865 by beginning to issue its licenses to a specially organized company, eliminating private concerns. This corporation paid nominal dividends to its stockholders, and the remaining profits went to the Government and the city. Sale of liquor to be consumed on the premises was limited to persons ordering food.

The results claimed, in Norway and pre-prohibition Finland, as well as in Sweden, were the sale of purer liquors, substitution of high-class cafes and liquor stores for the dram shop, elimination of politics from the liquor business, a reduction in the number of licenses and a smaller amount of drinking. It has been proposed in Finland to eliminate all private profit, with the Government owning the corporation. The profit motive, of course, contributed much to the saloon's sordid history in this country.

The Bratt system, a Swedish plan embodying the rationing of liquor, is disapproved by the Finnish Minister, because of the traffic in liquor cards. The Gothenburg system, placing no direct limit on purchases, does not have this disadvantage.

Should Finland adopt the Gothenburg plan again, its workings will be watched with great interest in this country. If the system actually results in temperance as well as governmental revenue, both deplorable lacking under our own noble experiment, it will have much to commend it as a substitute for America's present sub rosa liquor traffic.

THAT DAUGHERTY BOOK.

Harry M. Daugherty, politician emeritus, but a gay, glamorous figure in the days of Ohio-gusted Washington, is giving us advance glimpses of a book he has written. In one fragmentary preview, Albert B. Fall is shown forging Daugherty's name to a telegram and peremptorily demanding his (Fall's) appointment as Secretary of the Interior. Again, comes assurance that many of the misapprehensions as to Mr. Harding's nomination will be cleared away. But will all the jolly secrets of that dazzling interlude be divulged? Shall we get the inside story of the ingenious device by which Mr. Mellon persuaded the President-elect that, if made Secretary of the Treasury, he would be the greatest since Alexander? It is true that Bill Thompson shook a fist under King George's nose and told His Majesty to get ready for the sock if he did not insist upon Harvey's ambassadorial assignment to the Court of St. James? Will it all be jotted down in unreliable black and white, or will the Daugherty book, like so many over-blurred tomes, disappointingly reiterate the verdict that now it can't be told?

So far as is known, nothing good can be said for drug addiction. It makes people the slaves of a craving which is costly to support and which drives them mad if by any chance they are separated from their supply. So imperious is the demand of the drug that they will lie for it without scruple and, if necessary, will steal to get it. Since

A MONUMENT TO CARELESSNESS.

The Truth About Drug Addiction

Contrary to prevailing idea, narcotic addicts are not "big shot" criminals, but petty offenders, distrustful by underworld leaders; habit contracted usually from companions' example, not to relieve pain, and is spread by non-isolation in prisons; Federal law has aggravated problem, due to lack of knowledge about this class.

Joseph Failing Fishman, Former Federal Prison Inspector, and Vec Terrys Perlmán, Sociologist, in the American Mercury.

ONLY the much propagandized public believes the typical drug addict to be a desperate criminal. Those who deal directly with him—penologists, medical men, jail wardens and so forth—know him to be a nuisance rather than a menace. And criminals know him likewise. He is so far from being a big shot himself that it is axiomatic in the criminal world for big shots to have nothing to do with him. "Don't touch him, he's a junkie," is a common piece of advice from one criminal to another when they are discussing a third.

All criminals fear narcotic addicts much more than they fear the police. The reason is that every drug addict is a potential stool pigeon who can be made to squeal within 48 hours by keeping drugs away from him, and then offering him a shot if he will tell what the police want to know. Drugs to the user constitute a vital weakness. There is nothing he will not do to get them.

Undoubtedly the chief reason we are spending so much money on the addict and getting nowhere with him is that so little is known about him. Those individuals and organizations who endeavor to eliminate an evil by inculcating fear of its consequences have constantly painted him as an amiable but vicious creature who sooner or later runs afoul of the law and lands in the hands of the police. It is assumed even by penologists and criminologists that the majority of addicts are to be found among the criminal classes. But this belief is inspired by the careless theory that the statistics of prisons located in large population centers are typical of the entire United States. The fact is that, while there is a large percentage of addicts among the prisoners of New York and Chicago and, to a much lesser degree, some of the other large cities of the country, there are hundreds of jails and many penitentiaries where they are seldom, if ever, received.

Contrary to the widely accepted belief that most addicts get their start from drugs taken on their own initiative, or on the administration of a physician, to relieve pain, it is doubtful if even 1/4 of 1 percent start that way. In prison we commonly find, according to the answers given by addicts, that they began because other addicts suggested it. The physicians on the Mayor's Committee on Drug Addiction, in New York, said in their report: "Every addict, for the sake of companionship or for self-justification, ceaselessly endeavors to make other addicts."

This dangerous aspect of drug addiction seems to have been unknown when laws were passed throwing every addict into prison, where he instantly comes into contact with ample material for contamination. As in the case of the well-known barrel of apples, the good ones do not improve the bad one.

So far as is known, nothing good can be said for drug addiction. It makes people the slaves of a craving which is costly to support and which drives them mad if by any chance they are separated from their supply. So imperious is the demand of the drug that they will lie for it without scruple and, if necessary, will steal to get it. Since the social attitude toward the habit, when known, includes ostracism, they are apt to drift among lower and lower classes of people, and become more and more degraded.

On the other hand, there are the unnumbered addicts who, well, prosperous and happy, live among us unsuspected. Perhaps, we theorize, they are so constituted that they would not be so well off if they hadn't the drug to hold them up. The same piece of advice from one criminal to another when they are discussing a third.

What seems to have happened in this country is what often happens when laws are passed regarding some undesirable human interest. The mere passage of the legislation brings that practice an amount of attention out of all proportion to what it really deserves. The student of law enforcement in America can find many laws which have resulted in directing an amount of public attention to an evil out of all proportion to the seriousness of the evil itself.

A case in point is the so-called white slave law, or Mann Act, passed by Congress some years ago. Immediately following its passage, the so-called white slave traffic leaped to the fore in the newspapers and magazines, followed by reports of civic committees concerning the appalling prevalence of white slavery and the terrible menace which it offered to the American people. When calmer minds got together, the real facts were soon learned. There was, in truth, no organized white slave traffic worthy of the name, and such sporadic instances as did occur were out of all proportion to the great hullabaloo. Today there is a rather extensive demand for the law's repeal, for it has been very largely used as an instrument of blackmail.

The beginnings of the narcotic story are the same. With the passage of the Federal law against drugs, the Harrison Anti-Narcotic Act, the subject became front page news, and it is now receiving greater and greater prominence all the time. In the light of the American tendency to get feverishly worked up about an evil of some kind, subsequently found to be not nearly so serious as was at first believed, it is not probable that, once we begin to acquire some real knowledge on the subject, we shall find that the narcotic evil in the United States is not nearly as evil as it is supposed to be.

When the Lawyer Knows

From the Cleveland Press.

IS it proper for a lawyer to defend, on a plea of "not guilty," a client charged with a criminal offense when the latter has confessed to the lawyer himself the facts that he did commit the offense charged?

This old, intricate, much mooted question is raised again by a New York Judge who denounces as dishonest lawyers who defend guilty men—knowing them to be guilty.

In 1917 a general council of the British bar made an interesting report on the point. It held that "if the confession has been made before the proceedings have been commenced, it is most undesirable that the lawyer should undertake the defense, and he would most certainly be seriously embarrassed in the conduct of the case, and no harm can be done to the accused by questioning him to retain another advocate." On the other hand, where the confession has been made during the proceedings, the lawyer is charged with the duty of defending the accused, and the lawyer's duty is to protect his client as far as possible from being convicted except by a competent tribunal and upon legal evidence sufficient to support a conviction for the offense with which he is charged.

But—and this is highly pertinent to current criticism of certain practices among American criminal lawyers:

"Such a confession imposes very strict limitations on the conduct of the defense. An advocate may not assert that which he knows to be a lie. He may not connive at much less attempt to substantiate, a fraud. 'While, therefore, it would be right to take any objection to the competency of the court, to the form of the indictment, to the admissibility of any evidence or to the sufficiency of the evidence admitted, it would be absolutely wrong to suggest that some other person had committed the offense charged, or to call any evidence which he must know to be false, having regard to the confession, such, for instance, as evidence in support of an alibi, which is intended to show that the accused could not have done or in fact had not done the act; that is to say, an advocate must not (whether by calling the accused or otherwise) set up an affirmative case inconsistent with the confession made to him.'"

Would every criminal defense lawyer in the United States subscribe to the above? Would he be as punctilious where his client has confessed his guilt? Would he be scrupulous in rejecting alibi or any other evidence he knows to be false?

JAPAN'S COSTLY MARTIAL GLORY.

From the Philadelphia Record.

JAPAN'S headstrong Generals are correcting themselves with glory in Manchuria, but Japanese taxpayers and business men are footing the bill. That bill is the cost of the Japanese boycott. The greatest loss springs from the Chinese boycott. Since the trouble began in September, Chinese consumers have fought Japanese soldiers cutting their purchases of Japanese goods nearly $17,500,000. Add a loss of nearly $15,000,000 in confiscated goods and canceled contracts.

War used to be a simple matter of slaughter and booty. But in a world where livelihood is trade, you can't cut rough to new tomers. The more the glory, the less the profit.

Lenz Plays Well On Big Hands Declares Mr

cells How Opponents Missed an Easy Slam—Many of Husband's Doubles Defeated Because of Distribution.

(Copyright, 1932.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—The match between rubbers with Mr. Sidney S. Lenz and his partners, to test the merits of the approach-forcing and official systems of contract bidding, ended Friday. Today there will be only 21 rubbers to be played. After last night's session I shall have a short vacation from play, but Friday night to play the final rubber with Ely as my partner. I then this match was arranged, I agreed to play only 75 rubbers.

I have been so interested in the demonstration of the accuracy of the approach-forcing system of bidding that I was willing to devote some time to the match than I had expected to do at the beginning. An accurate count of the aces and ones held disclosed that the high cards held by the opposing sides had been about even. The matter of distribution, which plays a very large part in the success or failure of contracts at the bridge table, as, if anything, favored our opponents, and yet we are 16,835 points ahead, due, as I firmly believe, to the fact that we used the better system of bidding. This might make it appear that our opponents had played badly. That is not so. They have lived up to their reputations as brilliant and accurate players. As much cannot be said for the system of bidding used by them, however. Observe, for instance, and No. 742, played in the 124th rubber, which, as a result of the official system bidding, cost our opponents an easily makeable vulnerable small slam. Had the approach-forcing system of bidding been used, Mr. Lenz's opening bid would have been two clubs. Commander Liggett, who holds one and one-half honor tricks, and using the approach-forcing system would know that his partner held a minimum of five honor tricks, would respond with three no-trump. North would then lead four clubs to show a rebiddable suit, and be perfectly safe in the course, as his partner could not pass until a game had been completed.

The final result would have been a contract of six no-trump. South, after the clubs are rebid, would raise to five clubs, at North, with six honor tricks and from eight to nine playing tricks, would bid four no-trump. North would then lead four clubs to show a rebiddable suit, and be perfectly safe in the course, as his partner could not pass until a game had been completed.

The sixth rubber of the event was notable through the fact that all of the six hands were played doubled contracts, and two of the doubled contracts resulted in game for our opponents.

The final hand of the rubber was a particularly unfortunate one for our standpoint, because the fact which would have order for Lenz, who was playing a contract of four diamonds doubled by Ely, was his fineness in hearts and spades. Lenz lost instead of won, then, and of making a doubled contract he would have been defeated 100 to 100 points.

Lenz and his partner, Commander

Winfield Liggett Jr., gained

3385 points in the seventeenth session that ended early today. They won six of nine rubbers, making the series stand 71 rubbers for Culbertson to 58 for Lenz. The point score became 112,050 to 95,215.

Mrs. Josephine Culbertson completed her stipulated 75 rubbers last night, but intends to play again with her husband at the final session Friday night. Tonight Michael Gottlieb will be Culbertson's partner and Thursday night Howard

Schanken. There will be no session tomorrow night.

Lenz and Liggett held the better cards last night and this advantage was increased by Culbertson's coubling. In one rubber there was a double on each of the six hands.

Lenz and Liggett each made one double contract and each was set one. Each of the Culbertsons was set when doubled.

In another rubber Lenz, when vulnerable, was doubled at five diamonds, but fulfilled his contract.

Mrs. Culbertson failed, once at a little slam. Lenz once took all the tricks on his system's opening bid of three no trump, which was unopposed. A grand slam needed two finesses, but Culbertson said that under his system, bidding a suit first instead of no trump, a successful little slam at no trump would have been contracted.

Lenz, veteran defender of the "official" system, succumbed last night for the first time to what might be called a good luck place.

He brought with him a tiny dog shaped of wire and put it on a table near him.

After the session he said: "My partner played a very nice understanding game, as usual, and we held a few more cards."

Culbertson said: "We were crucified on the invisible rocks of distribution and had the kind of atrocious breaks that our opponents will hint about after they lose the match."

The session started with not a bidder in sight, but within 20 minutes the Waldorf-Astoria suite was filled with men in formal evening dress and women in fine gowns. At least two monies were counted. Mrs. Vincent Astor and

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Field III were among those present.

on the other two hands we made our two doubled contracts, thereby winning the rubber. The most interesting hand of the series was this one:

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

A WEDDING of much interest in St. Louis is that of Oscar E. Berninghaus, noted artist of St. Louis and Taos, N. M., and Miss Winnifred Shuler, daughter of Mrs. J. J. Shuler, Raton, N. M., which took place at noon today at the home of the bride's mother.

The bride was gown in beige satin with which she wore bronze slippers. She carried a bouquet of sweet peas and roses. The marriage service was read by the Rev. Samuel Magill, retired minister and close friend of the Shuler family. The guests included friends and relatives of the pair.

Mrs. Berninghaus is the youngest daughter of Mrs. J. J. Shuler, her father having been Mayor of Raton and a prominent physician before his death several years ago. She was educated at Colorado College, Colorado Springs, and Wellesley College. She is an authority on Indian subjects, having been field courier for the Indian Detour Service. The last year she has served as director for various art exhibits in Taos.

Mr. Berninghaus, who specializes in life of the Southwest in his paintings

TOLEDO CLUB TO BE SOLD TO THE HIGHEST BIDDER

to the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—The bankrupt Toledo club of the American Association, purchased six years ago for $175,000, will be sold tomorrow to the highest bidder.

Thomas J. Hickey, president of the league, was advised today that bids were being received by the United States District Court at Toledo, and that they would be opened tomorrow.

Donie Bush, manager of the Chicago White Sox last year, and Walter Clauer, former secretary of the Indianapolis club, will be among the bidders, President Hickey understands.

The Toledo club was thrown into the hands of receivers last season, and several efforts to sell it, at a figure somewhere near the original cost, failed.

CHAPTER. 8.

Sunset Pass

CHAPTER SEVEN.

With that Rock headed down the road which the Prestons had taken the preceding day. Before he was far out of town he had ascertained his horse was a fast walker and had an easy stride for speed and endurance, Leslie had committed himself to the fact that no horse in the country could approach him.

"I've hit the trail," sang out Rock, explosively, though it was a well-trodden road that he was traveling.

Many times as he had ridden from Wagontongue and other camps all over the West, one of them had ever been like this.

He got down a little way Rock and up with a young rider who evidently seen him.

"Hello, cowboy!" he greeted.

"Hello, yourself!" returned Rock, smiling.

Then you was up on Leslie's horse, so I waited.

"You know the horse?"

"Sure do. I ride for Spangler here and we often had Leslie's horse to pasture."

"Rocky, you know the white one. You kinda like that?"

"I've went broke buyin' a horse with this saddle."

"You shot got two that fit, you shot got two that fit, you shot got two that fit."

"I ain't ridin' cowboy?"

"I'm alimn' for Sunset Pass."

"Got a job with Preston?"

"Nope, not yet. I hope to land a job."

Case, if you will stand long and look at poor wages, Preston pays as much as any rancher hereabouts. "How much?" queried Rock, as if he was important.

"Forty, with promise of more."

"No puncher ever sticks long to get more."

"What you mean by easy?"

"Preston is always hard up for men. Reckon he's only got one job beside his sons. He asked yesterday if I wanted a job."

"What's the reason no cowboy rides long for Preston?"

"I knowed you was a stranger at Wagontongue," said the man grinning.

"I am lately. But I was years ago," Rock said.

"Before my time, shore. 'Cause remembered you. What's your name?"

Rock thanked him and asked questions about the range. Soon afterward the cowboy bade him adieu and turned off. As Rock rode on he drew away from the farming levels and the waste of the country, to get out into the proper.

Due time he reached the top of the range and there halted the horse and there he remembered the well-remembered country.

He saw a yellow-green sea of grass and sage, which sloped down on ridge of cedar and the grass. The length of the range both east and west extend beyond the limit of vision, and he began the vast cattle range made the town of Wagontongue possible.

Rock saw cattle everywhere, though he saw herds. The rough country commenced some fifteen miles or more farther on. Sunset and its environs were not in the range that was visible from the range.

Rock's horse rode into a verdant valley of fifty acres, fresh with its shades of green, surrounded by a pretty ranch house. Here Rock saw a boy leading a horse, a man at work under an open shed. Rock halted. Whereupon a farmer started out leisurely, and he hurried his steps. It was a stalwart, middle-aged, thick-set settler.

"The Rock, or I'm a born sinner," shouted Pringle, before he even saw Rock.

"Hello, Adam! How's the old cow?" returned Rock.

"I knowed that horse. An' I shore you jest from the way you called him. How air you? This dumb surprise. Get down an' meet Adam."

"What air you lookin' at?" "Sunset Pass."

"Cowboy, if you want work, I'll give you a job."

"Thanks, Adam, but I've got to look for a job. I'll be back to the old stampin' grounds."

"Adam, I didn't know Cass was here. I got to Wagontongue, and I was homesick."

"What air you goin'?"

"Sunset Pass."

"Cowboy, if you want work, I'll give you a job."

"Thanks, Adam, but I've got to look for a job. I'll be back to the old stampin' grounds."

KLEENEX price reduced!

Former 50c package now 35c

Enormous popularity of rayon-cellulose tissues for handkerchiefs—for beauty—for a thousand uses—results in nation-wide price reduction!

KLEENEX USERS—here's great news! A striking price reduction in Kleenex—those soft, delectable, cloth-like tissues!

The regular price of that big box—formerly 50c—is now but 35c. A third less! The same smart, sparkling package. The same number of tissues. The soft, cloth-like quality. Only the price has changed!

The reason

The great price slash is due to the enormous increase in Kleenex users. Twice as many people are using Kleenex as a year ago! So the price goes down for all!

At this new low price you'll find Kleenex more useful than ever. Let the whole family use it for handkerchiefs.

Use Kleenex for removing face creams. For applying make-up. Kleenex makes the care of infants so much easier. Doctors recommend it.

Buy several packages at this new low price. Every drug, dry goods and department store sells Kleenex.

FOR COLDS... FOR BEAUTY... Kleenex always is the answer for removing cleaning cream. You need it little that you use and destroy, thus avoiding self-inflicted. No handkerchiefs.

KLEENEX disposable TISSUES

PLANE FALLS
AT MIAMI, FLA.

Amphibian Plunges 2000 Feet to Ground While Endurance Flyer Is Stunting in Preliminaries to Air Races.

INGS DROP OFF, SHIP CRASHES

With Forrest O'Brine He Twice Set Refueling Record, the Last Time Remaining Up 647 Hours, 26 Minutes.

Associated Press. MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 6. — (AP) Jackson of St. Louis, leader of the world's endurance plane record, was killed today in an amphibian plane he was flying above the Municipal Air field approximately 2000 feet from the ground. The wings of the plane fell from as Jackson maneuvered high, approximately 100 airships were here for tomorrow's opening of the all-American air meet. Jackson, accompanied by "B" left St. Louis Monday morning on his way to Miami. He landed in Tennessee Monday afternoon, next stopped at Atlanta, Ga. Jackson wore a parachute when he took off in the small plane. Spectators said, but he apparently was unable to gain clearance after wings were stripped from the high above the airport. The amphibian, with the pilot in all to the ground on an adjoining airport. One of the wings was to it, but the other fell several blocks away. Spectators said Jackson maneuvered the amphibian for some time before the wings were torn from the strain. He had just completed an inside loop and was straightening out after his dive when one wing fell. Jackson's body from the plane as his head was crushed, but there were no other marks on the body. His right hand was clutched in the ring of his parachute cord. His wife was not at the airport when he fell.

Broke Record by 174 Hours. ALF JACKSON, with Forrest O'Brine, achieved international fame in July, 1929, when they flew their Robin monoplane in for 420 hours, 37 minutes, in St. Louis County for a new refueling endurance record. The mark was 174 hours longer than the previous world record. "Red," as Jackson preferred to be called, was known nationally as a daredevil of the air before the world-breaking endurance flight. Having previously set a barrel-roll record with 417 rolls and achieved a flight in stunt flying and a New York-Los Angeles coast-to-coast plane race of 1928. A native of Fairbury, Minn., he returned to St. Louis during the winter of 1926-27. Less than a year after he started as a flight instructor, he became instructor at the Curtiss-Robertson Airplane Manufacturing Co., sponsor of the endurance flight. After the flight which kept him in the air 17 1/2 days, Jackson and O'Brine were acclaimed in a celebration second in St. Louis to Lindbergh's return from his transatlantic flight in 1927.

Tour Follows Achievement. With O'Brine and the refueling record, Jackson followed the end of his flight with a tour of the United States. He demonstrated refueling at a number of points, but after a week on the coast, concluded that his place was in the cockpit of an airplane. The known earnings of Jackson and O'Brine for their first and second flight were said to be $1,000. This attracted other endurance flyers, and the following year the Hunter brothers, Wm. and Fred, set a new mark of 41 hours, 41 minutes, at Chicago.

Again Breaks Record. Determined to bring the record to St. Louis, Jackson and O'Brine obtained new equipment and again took off at Lambert Field, set on remaining in the air something "busted." They stayed 67 hours, 26 minutes and 30 seconds.
